BREATH OF LIFE

S. Viets watch, cheer as conquerors file into city, ending long conflict

SAIGON (AP) — The Saigon government surrendered unconditionally today and Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops occupied the capital. At first the South Vietnamese stood in doorways and watched the troops pour into the city, then some began cheering.

Many former government soldiers turned in their arms and tried to lose themselves amid the civilian population. But there were periodic outbursts of gunfire — some from pockets of resistance and others from celebrating Viet Cong and North Vietnamese firing into the air.

A police colonel shot himself in front of the National Assembly building after walking up to an army memorial statue and saluting. He died later in a hospital.

Some South Vietnamese pilots continued today to fly planeloads of relatives and other members of the armed forces to neighboring Thailand. Several thousand South Vietnamese fled the country by this route Tuesday.

And U.S. officials struggled with the logistics of resettling the estimated 45,000 South Vietnamese it helped to evacuate from the country before the surrender. The end of official American presence in the country came late Tuesday.

People in Hanoi raced into the streets and embraced each other in "a general explosion of joy," the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported. Flags were raised, and the North Vietnamese capital "became the noisiest and happiest city in the world."

"At 11:30 (a.m.) on April 30, 1975, the flag of the Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG) of the Republic of South Vietnam fluttered above the palace of the puppet president and on other buildings in the city," declared Hanoi's Vietnam News Agency, in a broadcast monitored in Tokyo.

The broadcast reiterated that Saigon has been renamed Ho Chi Minh City in honor of the late North Vietnamese leader.

President Duong Van Minh announced his government's unconditional surrender in a broadcast at midmorning and ordered the South Vietnamese armed forces to turn in their arms. He was then picked up by North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops and taken to an unknown location.

Four hours later, a jeepload of North Vietnamese soldiers brought the 51-year-old retired general back to a microphone, and he appealed again to the government forces to give up.

Loud explosions were heard in the late afternoon in Saigon. They were reported aboard an ammunition barge burning in the Saigon River, but no damage was reported in the city except at the U.S. Embassy and other American buildings, which the Saigonese cleaned out after their former occupants were evacuated.

Otherwise life returned to a semblance of normalcy. People strolled the streets and greeted the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese with smiles and handshakes. Motorbike traffic picked up. Viet Cong flags appeared on many buildings.

Hundreds of South Vietnamese applauded as scores of North Vietnamese tanks, armored vehicles and camouflaged Chinese trucks drove down Unity Boulevard to the presidential palace shortly after noon.

The Viet Cong took over the Saigon radio station and announced: "We representatives of the liberation forces of Saigon formally proclaim that Saigon has been totally liberated. We accept the unconditional surrender of Gen. Duong Van Minh, president of the former government."

A curfew was ordered from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. Government employes were urged to return to work and students and other youths were urged to participate in a demonstration at a time to be announced later.

U.S. Ambassador Graham Martin, who left Saigon Tuesday in a helicopter airlift that carried some 900 Americans and about 5,600 South Vietnamese from the city, landed on the USS Blue Ridge in the South China Sea.

Non-Communist Asian countries reacted to the surrender with a shrug of resignation and a sigh of relief. "The long agony of Vietnam has come to an end," said Thailand's Foreign Ministry. Prime Minister Kukrit Pramoj said his government is ready to recognize whatever government emerges.

In Paris, scores of Vietnamese besieged the South Vietnamese Embassy to get their passports and other travel documents revalidated before the imminent takeover of the building by the other side. A squad of French riot police controlled the crowd on the sidewalk.

The noontime march of the Viet Cong into Saigon was led by eight cheering men in a jeep flying the Viet Cong flag. None wore uniforms, but they carried an assortment of weapons including AK47 rifles.

Retired AF colonel reveals CIA plot to fly pair to Cuba to kill Castro

WASHINGTON (AP) — A retired Air Force colonel says the CIA once requested a plane under his command and flew two men into Cuba to kill Fidel Castro.

L. Fletcher Prouty said he came forward now with an account of his involvement in the abortive plot in "late 1959 or early 1960" because of a verbal attack by former CIA Director Richard Helms against CBS newsman Daniel Schorr for reporting possible CIA involvement in assassination schemes.

"It got me a little upset," Prouty said of Helms' denunciation, which was widely reported and televised.

Prouty, who handled Air Force liaison with the CIA, said in a telephone interview Tuesday he was positive Helms knew about the plot to kill Castro. Helms has claimed to have no knowledge of CIA responsibility for any assassinations, but hasn't mentioned the possibility of unsuccessful attempts.

At the time of the Castro assassination attempt, Helms was in almost total control of the CIA's clandestine operations against Cuba, said Prouty. Helms was assistant to Richard Bissel, then-CIA deputy director of plans, the agency's so-called "dirty tricks" department.

Prouty said he dispatched a specially equipped Air Force plane at the CIA's request to land two Cuban exiles on a road near Havana. The would-be assassins were "equipped with a high-powered rifle and telescopic sights" and "knew how to get to a building in Havana which overlooked a building where Castro passed daily," Prouty said.

He said the five-seat, single-engine plane landed and returned safely to Eglin Air Force Base in Florida, but the two exiles "as far as I know were nigged up between where they were left off and town."

Prouty said one of the exiles was named Oscar Spijo and that the plane had been flown by "mercenaries" on the CIA payroll.

Now an Amtrak official, Prouty was with the Defense Department's Office of Special Operations at the time of the plot. He retired from the Air Force in 1963 and wrote a book called "The Secret Team," detailing his experiences as Air Force liaison with the CIA.

The incident which triggered Prouty's disclosure followed a 3½-hour appearance by Helms before a closed-door meeting of the Rockefeller Commission, which is investigating CIA domestic activities.

As he emerged from the session, Helms spotted Schorr in the hallway and denounced him with profanities and referred to him as "Killer Schorr" for reporting that the "CIA goes around killing people."

Schorr has reported that President Ford is concerned that an unlimited investigation of CIA activities could uncover agency involvement in foreign assassinations.

Bissel, who left the agency following the Bay of Pigs fiasco, said in a recent interview there had been high-level discussions about killing Castro but the plans were vetoed by then-CIA Director Allen Dulles.

Prouty said he knew of "one or two" other assassination attempts against Castro following the Bay of Pigs, but said he did not know details of the missions because he was not directly involved in them.

New American Asian policy now a 'must'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A major task for the Ford administration following the ragged end to the American role in Vietnam is development of a new, realistic Asian policy while warding off possible Communist adventurism, U.S. officials say.

The focus of a policy redevelopment ordered by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will be on Japan, South Korea, the Philippines and Indonesia.

Thailand, which now faces a serious Communist threat, is in a special category and will be treated separately.

Speaking privately in the hours after the U.S. evacuation of Saigon and the subsequent surrender to the Viet Cong Tuesday night, these officials said American diplomacy in Asia has been staggering for the last two years.

Events in Indochina in the last few weeks also have revealed basic weaknesses in many old ties with other nations in the region, the sources stated.

While many reasons are offered, the consensus centers on Kissinger's view that congressional intrusion into the execution of foreign policy, particularly the removal of the military option, eliminated the basis of U.S. policy in Southeast Asia.

The idea behind the reassessment, therefore, will be to strengthen old ties and develop new ones based on mutual economic and political concerns rather than military accords.

Congress may kill $327 million Viet aid bill for a bigger one

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the evacuation of U.S. citizens from South Vietnam complete and Vietnam surrendered, Congress may scrap a $327 million aid bill and start over on an Indochinese refugee aid measure that could cost even more.

The new bill funding evacuation and the care of Cambodians and other non-Americans as well as some 65,000 South Vietnamese to the United States was proposed Tuesday by House International Relations Chairman Thomas E. Morgan, D-Pa., and backed by House Speaker Carl Albert.

"I think it will be a lot more than $327 million," Morgan said.

He said he had no estimates but believed the cost might be high to reimburse the military's evacuation costs over the past month as well as the new costs of bringing refugees to the United States.

Albert said he believed controversial congressional authority for Ford's use of military forces for the evacuation should be knocked out of the new bill as moot.

"I think we should start from scratch on a new bill — eliminate the things that have already been eliminated by the facts and provide humanitarian assistance for these Cambodians and South Vietnamese and the others," Albert said.

Morgan had issued a statement harshly criticizing Albert for pulling the original bill off the House floor at the last minute Tuesday. Morgan said Congress should have voted on authorizing the U.S. forces before the evacuation was over.

The House had already started preliminaries to giving the bill Congress' final approval when Albert ordered it pulled off the calendar.

House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts said Ford agreed it could be dropped because he no longer needed it.

O'Neill had split with other House leaders last week and opposed the military evacuation authority. He said he and other leaders did not want to force a vote on the precedent of authorizing the U.S. evacuation troops if they did not have to.

"It's moot now," O'Neill said. "There's no need for it. Why establish a precedent on something that is moot?"

Morgan said Congress has been trying since 1973 to make clear that the President has no power to send U.S. military forces into hostilities abroad, with few exceptions, unless Congress authorizes it.

"We are now being told to retreat from that principle," Morgan said.

But Morgan said he agreed the congressional troop evacuation authority in the bill did become moot when the evacuation was completed later in the day.

He said that was why he proposed that Congress start from scratch to write a new bill on refugee aid. While Morgan said refugee costs could be more than $327 million it "would be useful in the effort to resettle and relocate the South Vietnamese refugees."

Tornadoes leave five dead, many injured in South

By Associated Press

Tornadoes killed five persons as thunderstorms rumbled through the South today churning out a rash of twisters.

Heavy thunderstorms during the night left many sections of Vicksburg, Miss., and Alexandria, La., without electrical power.

Three persons were killed and five were injured when a twister smashed through the south Texas community of Yancey during Tuesday afternoon. Eight were injured in the Beaumont-Vidor area and four were hurt at Calvert.

Louisiana State Police said the worst damage appeared to be in the eastern central section of that state.

"At least two tornadoes came through Vernon Parish," said a state police spokesman at Leesville, "and there were two fatalities."

"A little girl was killed when a tree fell on her at Pitkin, and a woman was killed when a house trailer overturned near Rosepine."

Identities were not immediately available.

Large hail accompanied severe thunderstorms that raked portions of Louisiana, Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri. Rains of an inch or more were common.

Wintry weather clung to sections of the northern Rockies and plains.

Up to 14 inches of snow in the Lead-Deadwood area of South Dakota on Monday and Tuesday caused a lengthy power outage that forced cancellation of school classes Tuesday. The snow downed trees, which in turn fell on power lines.

Flooding — both from recent heavy rains and melting snow — plagued scattered areas from Minnesota and North Dakota to Mississippi and Louisiana. Army engineers said the Mississippi River was rising toward a new crest in the South.

The Mississippi was expected to crest Saturday at 15.5 feet at St. Paul, Minn., where flood stage is 14 feet.

Berkeley marchers hail Hanoi victory

BERKELEY (AP) — About 350 persons marched through the streets behind Viet Cong flags, cheering and chanting "Victory! Victory!" after word of South Vietnam's surrender.

Steel income up

By Associated Press

The nation's biggest steel producers, U.S. Steel Corp. and Bethlehem Steel Corp., have reported increased earnings for the first quarter of 1975. U.S. Steel said profits were more than double those of the same period a year ago.

But General Motors Corp., one of the Big Three carmakers, said Tuesday its profits in the same three-month period dipped by 51 per cent, to the lowest level for the quarter in 29 years.

Mrs. Pettis is easy winner of husband's post

SAN BERNARDINO (AP) — Republican Shirley N. Pettis gained an outright victory by a better than four-to-one margin today in the special congressional election in this sprawling Southern California desert district, represented until his death by her husband.

Mrs. Pettis, 51, whose husband, Jerry, perished in a plane crash last Feb 14, tallied 53,103 votes, or more than 60 per cent of the votes with all 557 precincts reporting in the 37th Congressional District.

Second in the race was Democratic Riverside attorney Ron Pettis — no relation to the late congressman — whose vote total was 12,920.

In third place with 11,126 votes was another Democrat, San Bernardino County Supervisor James L. Mayfield, 37, of Apple Valley. Former Palm Springs Mayor Frank M. Bogert, 65, a Republican, ran fourth with 4,761 votes.

Election officials said more than 50 per cent of the eligible 170,111 voters in the district, covering the eastern section of San Bernardino and Riverside counties, cast their ballots.

Mrs. Pettis, who had the strong support of area Republican organizations, reported raising campaign funds of $58,207, far in excess of the $12,016 reported by the next highest spender among the five Republicans, six Democrats and one American Independent Party candidate in the race.

One of the candidates, Republican Robert J. Allenthorpe, a Big Bear Lake businessman, was convicted last week on two counts of perjury involving falsification of his home address in a special California Senate election two years ago.

A CHAT WITH THE GOV.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. chatted with youngsters from Anaheim Tuesday in an impromptu meeting. They were visiting the governor's offices when he invited them inside for a question and answer session.

Diplomat warns against lack of resolve in U.S.

The Soviet Union is just as anxious as the United States for peaceful coexistence, but let there be no relaxation in the American resolve.

If there is, a State Department diplomat told members of Pomona Rotary Club on Tuesday, Russia may try to flex its military muscle.

A lack of national resolve over matters such as Vietnam and the economy could leave the Soviet leadership wondering whether it is not a good time to put the United States to a test of long-term competition on the world scene, declared Mark Garrison, who is director of the Office of Soviet Union Affairs.

This is not likely during the next six months, Garrison stated, because of President Ford's upcoming visit to Russia and the conference early next year on European security.

But, Garrison added, it would be a good idea for Americans in the next eight to 18 months to "pull up our socks with a new national consensus on where we're at and where we're going."

Both Russia and America recognize, according to Garrison, that they are not going to accomplish their objectives by force. But it does not mean there is any truce in the struggle of ideologies, he added.

Garrison said that Red China is also a superpower but not in the same way as Russia and the United States because it does not have a nuclear arsenal — as yet. He said that China represents more of a threat to Russia than the United States just because of its proximity. Garrison said he believes that the Hanoi regime will be looking to Moscow for bolstering to resist the Chinese influence. The removal of U.S. power from Southeast Asia should redound to the benefit of the Chinese, he said.

Brown chuckles about job with school children

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. granted a group of Anaheim schoolchildren a special question and answer session and then joked that he was really somebody else in disguise.

Brown called the state Capitol "my haunted house" and said that he didn't live in the old governor's mansion which the children had visited because it was too big and there were too many things to dust.

Thirty-two fourth and fifth grade children from Hansen Elementary School in Anaheim bumped into the 37-year-old bachelor governor during a tour of the Capitol.

He invited them into a meeting room in his office for a question and answer session.

Brown joked with the children and their teachers for 15 minutes. He asked them how they raised the $1,078 for the excursion, and a student replied, "We had a haunted house."

Then a boy asked, "What's your job?"

"My job is to talk to people like you and answer your questions," Brown said.

"Do you get money for that?" a voice asked.

"Do I get money for that? Yes. It's just like the haunted house. This is my haunted house," Brown said.

Panel okays bills easing medical insurance crisis

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Two insurance pooling measures aimed at easing California's malpractice crisis edged closer to final approval as they zipped through their last committee test.

And Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. said he is personally trying to get doctors and insurance officials togther to work out a compromise.

The Assembly Ways and Means Committee sent both bills to the lower house floor Tuesday. A third pooling measure faces a Senate floor vote, probably this week.

The three bills are expected to reach Brown's desk soon — forcing the 37-year-old Democrat to chose which, if any, he will sign.

The bills were introduced after Argonaut Insurance Co., which insures 4,600 Northern California doctors in eight counties, said it was canceling its group malpractice contracts.

Following recent meetings betweeen company officials and Brown, Argonaut spokesmen were quoted as saying they would continue group coverage but they could not lower their planned rate hikes.

Brown said he also talked by telephone with Argonaut executives Tuesday, and may try again.

Brown's comment on the meeting was: "We got them with representatives of the doctors, but I understand they didn't get very far.

"We're still working on it. That's what we're going to do right now, as soon as I stop talking to you," he told a group of reporters Tuesday afternoon.

Sens. Peter Behr and Dennis Carpenter and Assemblyman Alister McAlister authored the three bills which all set up some form of insurance pool.

Carpenter's bill, backed by the California Medical Association, cleared Ways and Means on a 15-1 vote. The Behr bill, which Behr says is sponsored by the insurance industry, won a 17-0 vote.

All the bills give the state insurance commissioner power to have the pooling system issue coverage if he determines malpractice insurance was substantially unavailable in a particular county.

Behr, a Marin County Republican, said he believed it was a good idea to put his bill's effective date at the end of 1975.

"That puts the feet of the legislature to the fire to make them realize they haven't done anything substantive yet in the way of reforms."

The bills' authors have said their measures offer short-term relief while legislature considers a broad range of legislation to ease the malpractice crisis.

Workshop on profit sharing, pensions to be held at Poly

A workshop on pension and profit sharing plans will be held Friday and Saturday at Kellogg West, the center for continuing education at Cal Poly Pomona.

New anti-mugging weapon

DETROIT (AP) — A pedestrian, strolling along a dimly lit street, is confronted by a thug demanding money. But instead of meekly handing over his cash, or pulling a gun and shooting the would-be robber, the citizen produces an object that resembles a flashlight, presses a button, and immobilizes his foe.

Science fiction? Not according to Eliot Bank, who says a device called the Taser will do just that. Bank is marketing the device in the Detroit area. It is invented by a California aerospace engineer, John Cover.

The Taser, says Bank, shoots out tiny wires with hooks on the end. The hooks embed themselves in flesh, and carry a 50,000 volt charge, immobilizing the recipient.

"Shooting a person is irrevocable," said Bank. "The Taser merely stuns and immobilizes."

The device is powered by a rechargeable battery, weighs about 21 ounces and slips over a belt like a conventional holster.

The hooks, limited to use in an 18-foot radius by the chargecarrying wires, are fired harpoon-like by a gunpowder charge. They can penetrate clothing up to 1½ inches thick, according to Banks and travel the 18 feet in 1-20th of a second.

Board delays decision

Bonita teens plead for open campus

By EVELYN HOLLINGER

Students of Bonita and San Dimas high schools will have to wait at least one week for a decision from the Bonita school board about their request for an open campus during the noon hour.

At the Tuesday night board meeting, some 40 students, parents, teachers and administrators heard San Dimas High School student body President Phil Agnew speak in behalf of the students of both schools.

Agnew pointed out that Bonita and San Dimas high schools are surrounded by schools which do allow open campuses at noon. Students at Claremont and all Pomona, Charter Oak and Royal Oak high schools now have such freedom.

Agnew presented the board with copies of the research which had been done in preparation for making the request. This included a review of the responses received from letters sent to parents.

San Dimas parents, in a 20 per cent return, were about evenly divided — 51 per cent in favor and 49 per cent opposed. Bonita parents responded with 75 per cent in favor and a 25 per cent opposed, in a 25 per cent response to the letters sent out.

Board member Anton Dyck indicated that he would like to see a greater response from parents before a decision would be made. Supt. James Johnson responded that 25 per cent is about what can be expected in response to such requests.

The Board will meet next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. for a special meeting to make a decision after it receives advice from the county counsel staff. The board is seeking to find out what legal responsibility the schools must bear for students who are off campus during such open campus hours.

The problem is also complicated by the nature of the locality of the two high schools. Bonita is near enough for students to walk to their homes or to downtown eating places. San Dimas High School students would have to drive to any off-campus eating place except for a limited number who could walk home for lunch.

One parent, Mrs. Roger Iwig of San Dimas, responded to the prepared document with its list of advantages, with some questions to Agnew. "Where will the litter go that will be lessened on campus?" she asked. "Where will the smoking be done if it is not done on campus?"

However, no one offered an answer to these.

Claims many not really orphans

Suit asks halt in Viet adoptions

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A class action suit filed in federal court is seeking to block adoption of Vietnamese children brought here during Operation Babylift, alleging many hundreds flown here were not orphans.

The class action, filed in U.S. District Court Tuesday, asks that adoptions be delayed until consent is obtained from the children's parents or relatives, or it is determined they cannot be found.

The suit was brought on behalf of two sisters and a brother, ages 3-7, who, the suit contends, were brought here without the consent of their parents.

The court was told the children had been living in an orphanage for only a few days before they were "abducted" and transported to this country.

The defendants include Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger, Atty. Gen. Edward Levi, the Presidio commander, the baby airlift director and the California secretary of health and welfare.

Representing the children in the suit is Muoi McConnell, a Vietnamese who worked as a nurse in Vietnam and went to the San Francisco Presidio when doctors, nurses and interpreters were needed to handle the flood of children here.

The suit said agencies began the babylift in "collaboration and conspiracy" with private parties on April 3, and that many hundreds flown here were not orphans. The suit also claims the releases and consents for adoption had not been given.

The real purpose of the program was to create a favorable opinion to continue "unconstitutional and illegal" U.S. involvement in the war in South Vietnam and to get more funds from Congress for military support.

Tests ordered in tonsil surgery death

Toxicology and microscopic tests have been ordered by the San Bernardino County Coroner's Office to determine the cause of the death of 3-year-old Anna Lisa Wohosky of 12450 Marshall Ave. of Chino last Wednesday.

The little girl died at Chino General Hospital. A coroner's office spokesman said she had undergone surgery to remove her tonsils, but it is not believed the little girl died of complications from the surgery.

The toxicology and microscopic tests could take as long as six weeks to complete, the spokesman said.

McVittie backs jail for drug pushers

Assemblyman Bill McVittie, D-65th Dist., joined the Assembly majority in passing a bill which guarantees jail sentences to persons caught furnishing drugs to minors.

The measure, Assembly Bill 756, authored by Assemblyman Dan Boatwright, D-Concord, and co-authored by McVittie, requires every person convicted of selling or furnishing drugs to people under 18 be sent to prison.

"We cannot be lenient with persons who prey upon our young people by selling or giving them drugs," said McVittie.

This action often leads decent young people to a life of addiction and despair."

The bill passed by the Assembly on Monday now goes to the Senate for action.

Steady stream of refugees bound for U.S.

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer

Thousands of South Vietnamese have joined a widening stream of refugees bound for the United States and what could be months of grappling with red tape and uncertainty.

About 1,400 of the refugees, some who saw their homeland torn by war, the government they supported in collapse, arrived at West Coast military bases Tuesday. Many, many others filled a temporary tent city on Guam.

Military officials on the Pacific island listed the refugee population early today at 28,044. They said it would reach 40,000 as evacuees streamed in from initial processing centers on Wake Island and at Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott told reporters that by noon Tuesday, 45,000 refugees had been evacuated from the country. Later in the day, President Ford said in a statement the evacuation of Americans was complete. Hours later, the Saigon government surrendered and North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops entered the city.

Military and Immigration and Naturalization Service workers on Guam said they cleared 2,000 refugees Tuesday for departure to the States and that they expected the rate to increase to 5,000 a day in 10 days.

Most of the first to pass through Camp Pendleton, Calif., the sprawling Marine base near San Diego, were Americans with Vietnamese wives, their children and their wives' families. By late afternoon, many had been processed and were headed home.

But others arrived with neither homes nor friends in this country, and for them military and civilian authorities hurriedly prepared necessary shelter, food and medical services.

The Pentagon said temporary homes would be provided refugees at Pendleton, at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida and at Ft. Chaffee, Ark. Spokesmen at Eglin and Chaffee said officials there were geared for the first arrivals by the end of the week.

Preparations were being made to provide housing for 20,000 refugees at each of the installations, officials said.

There was no clear word on how long the refugees would remain at the bases. One soldier at Chaffee said he had been issued 90-day orders.

Reports of complaints from refugees, meantime, were common with the mass evacuation only hours old.

"We're very thankful and appreciative to the immigration people and the Army and the Marines for getting us out, but I don't think we should be put through all this," said Dick Swanson, a Washington, D.C., free-lance photographer, as he awaited processing at Pendleton.

Swanson was among the first to land in California. He arrived with 12 members of his Vietnamese wife's family. His wife already is in Washington.

On Guam, there were grumblings of another sort. Authorities said many refugees complained of chaos in the processing procedure, primarily that those who had been on the island longest were not always getting out first.

Medics at the Pacific island way-station innoculated Vietamese refugee children for measles and polio, while colleagues worked to isolate active cases of tuberculosis.

Neither problem is considered serious at the moment, said Navy Capt. Charles Muehe, the chief medical officer on the island.

The first evacuees to reach the United States landed at El Toro Marine Corps Air Station, near Pendleton, and at Norton Air Force Base outside San Bernardino, about 90 miles away. They were bused to Pendleton. Others landed at Travis AFB in Northern California.

Pendleton: a new life without war for South Viet evacuees

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP) — Vietnamese youngsters played baseball with Marines while mothers hung out washing as the newest evacuees from Saigon settled into a new life of peace.

Although the new arrivals had left the real war behind, Marine helicopters rattled overhead in a training exercise and artillery boomed behind the hills of their temporary Southern California home.

But the 1,000 evacuees who arrived at this sprawling Marine training base Tuesday took no obvious notice, unaware their former homeland had just surrendered to the Viet Cong.

Another 400 evacuees arrived Tuesday at Travis Air Force Base in Northern California aboard a chartered 747 from Guam.

The evacuees here—some Americans but mostly Vietnamese dependents of American civilians and military men — set up housekeeping in Marine quonset huts that eventually may house 20,000 persons.

Mothers put their children to bed on cots and hung washing out to dry under sunny skies that beamed a warm welcome.

Marines broke out balls and bats and used a parade ground and parking lot for a game of baseball with some delighted youngsters.

But some Marines recalled the war when asked about a noticeable silence as evacuees arrived by bus after their planes landed at nearby El Toro Marine Air Station and Norton AFB near San Bernardino.

"A lot of these guys," said a Marine sergeant, "fought over there. I guess they don't really make much distinction between the good guys and the bad guys."

The arrivals ran into other routines: doctors looked under eyelids; cooks stewed pots of creamed chicken and rice; greeters handed out packets containing toothbrushes, candy bars and sandals; officials pointed out double-decked sleeping bunks inside the quonset huts.

Officials even planned to set up schoolhouses for the children, and provide job counseling for adults.

But since most had American sponsors to take them into their homes or help with a job or getting into school, the common hope was to get out within several days. Indeed, nearly 200 who arrived Tuesday left by their first nightfall in America.

Others worked on arrangements to leave. One 25-year-old woman called her husband's boss in Stockton. After talking awhile she turned to reporters and asked, "where is Stockton?"

"It's about 400 miles north of here," a bystander said.

REFUGEES ARRIVE The first group of refugees from Viet Nam, bused to Camp Pendleton Tuesday from nearby El Toro Air Base where their plane from Guam had landed earlier, head down the street followed by newsmen toward the quonset hut where they will stay till sent to their new hometowns in the United States.

South Viets rush in, tear up abandoned U.S. Embassy

By PETER ARNETT

SAIGON (AP) — The six-story U.S. Embassy in Saigon withstood a determined Viet Cong commando attack in 1968, and five Americans died in its defense.

Today, without its armed guards, the embassy was no match for thousands of Saigonese getting their last American handout.

They took everything, including the kitchen sinks and a machine to shred secret documents.

The bronze plaque with names of the five American servicemen who died in the embassy in 1968 was torn from the lobby wall. It lay amid piles of documents and furniture on the back lawn. We carried it back to the Associated Press office.

"It is our embassy now," said a laughing young Vietnamese soldier as he pranced gleefully along the littered hallway of the administrative building.

The handsome embassy building on Thong Nhut Boulevard was abandoned by a detachment of U.S. Marines at 7:50 this morning. They remained behind after Ambassador Graham Martin left to prevent waiting Vietnamese from rushing the last helicopters.

As the Marines left, they threw tear gas grenades into the elevator shaft. But after their helicopter lifted off the roof, the Vietnamese rushed in, ignoring the tear gas as they tore into filing cabinets and cupboards.

The Vietnamese had started on the embassy annex to the rear of the main building at dawn.

Eleven young people, some of the soldiers in uniform, tried to smash open a heavy safe they had turned on its face.

They looked at our white faces and cameras suspiciously, but when we claimed French citizenship they laughed conspiratorily and invited us to share in the proceeds. We didn't stay for the opening.

Rolls and rolls of Bank of America embassy payroll checks were strewn across a concrete parking lot.

Smashed typewriters and overturned filing cabinets marked with red "secret" and "classified" stickers were in many rooms.

A group of Vietnamese were dragging a large "shredmaster" for destroying documents from a basement room. Five large drums marked "One each, Document Destroyer, drum type without igniter" were in a corner of the room. Piles of dust that probably had been secret papers the night before were on the floor.

In the back of the main building, automobiles had been smashed. Amid broken tables and broken pictures, what seemed like tons of documents floated about in the breeze.

About 50 Vietnamese men, women and children still perched on the helicopter pad on the roof. They beckoned to us to come up to them, apparently believing that if white people were there, the helicopters might come back.

We entered through the broken back door of the embassy and started up the stairs. The reek of tear gas was almost overwhelming. Every room we looked into appeared to have been hit with a battering ram.

The gas drove us back downstairs.

Pomona College gates sprayed with paint

Two landmarks damaged by graffiti

Two of Claremont's best-known landmarks have been damaged by graffiti.

The stone gates guarding the entrance of Pomona College at College Avenue and Sixth Street were sprayed with paint Thursday evening and numerous signs and slogans were sprayed on the front of Bridges Auditorium on the Claremont Colleges campus during the same night.

There were no special activities on the campus that night, according to Peter Emmet, director of public relations for the Claremont Colleges.

Emmet added that the Chicano Studies Center students on the campus voted over the weekend to strike because of dissatisfaction with the budget proposed for next year for the program. But, he said, the paint spraying preceded the voting action and there is some question as to whether college students were involved.

Chicano students from the Claremont colleges did go to the Bridges Auditorium office and offer to help remove the stains if possible, said Emmet.

Because Bridges Auditorium is scheduled to be closed this summer, there is no money in the budget to paint over the graffiti, said Emmet. He stated that the stone gates will probably have to be sand blasted.

Investigation into the incident is being continued, according to Emmet.

Meanwhile, five telephoned bomb threats against Sumner Hall on the Pomona College campus were made between 11 p.m. and midnight Tuesday, Claremont police reported.

No buildings were cleared, however, and nothing was found.

All the calls except one were made by women, police said. One call came in to the police station at 11:35 p.m. According to the police report, a woman said, "A bomb, Pomona College, Sumner Hall." She then immediately hung up.

In ONTARIO, a 21-foot boat, a trailer and a 427 cubic inch inboard engine valued at $7,000 were stolen from a driveway at the side of the Lloyd Mullin home at 544 Armsley Square, police reported.

Mullin, according to police reports, said he had parked the boat and trailer in his driveway about 11 p.m. Tuesday. When he returned to his home an hour later the boat and trailer were missing.

The boat was brown in color with a white and yellow colored trailer. It had a 427 cubic inch inboard Chevrolet inboard motor. Mullin said the boat is registered in Arizona.

In UPLAND, burglars using a channel lock, during daylight hours, twisted open the front door of a home at 1382 W. Arrow Highway and stole valuable stereo equipment, a camera and a sport jacket with a total value of $1,622.

Carl Anderson reported that the burglary when he returned home about 5 p.m. Tuesday and found the front door open. Anderson told officers that the stolen stereo equipment included a reel-to-reel tape recorder, an eight track tape recorder, an amplifier, and turntable.

Two CHINO men were booked in the West End jail this morning suspected of burglarizing a home at 15679 Palomino Drive in the Los Serranos area Monday.

West End sheriff's detectives said the men were arrested after a woman complained they had distracted her and taken her television set.

Detectives said the two suspects, Lenley Tay Schofield, 30, of 12827 Yorba Ave., Chino, and his brother Larry Edward Schofield, 33, also of Chino, were doing some repair work on the woman's home when the burglary allegedly took place.

A 27-year-old Pomona man has been arrested by MONTCLAIR police in connection with the theft of a purse in a woman's room at the Holiday Motor Inn at 9191 Central Ave.

John D. Owens, 27, of 897 Collingwood Drive, Pomona, according to police, had been sought on a warrant for burglary for some time. Owens Tuesday, with his attorney, walked into the police station to surrender himself on the warrant.

He was booked in the West End Jail, pending further investigation.

'Gunsmoke' canceled after 20-year run

NEW YORK (AP) — Marshall Matt Dillon is hanging up his six-gun. After 20 years on television and three on radio, "Gunsmoke" has been canceled by CBS.

CBS also said Tuesday it was cancelling the durable "Mannix," on for eight seasons, and four other shows.

Other shows to be dropped include "The Manhunter," which lasted one season; its Friday night movies; and a mid-season replacement series, "We'll Get By," created by "M-A-S-H" star Alan Alda.

NBC last week canceled six series. ABC says it expects to announce its program lineup for next season on Thursday.

LAST TO DIE Cpl. Charles McMahon, 22, left, and Lance Cpl. Darwin L. Judge, 19, were the last two American servicemen killed in Vietnam. They died in a Viet Cong rocket attack on Tan Son Nhut Airport near Saigon Monday.

Tougher emission rules for state?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — California's air is so dirty that automakers should make cleaner cars for this state than for the rest of the nation in 1977, the top California air quality official says.

State officials Tuesday asked the federal Environmental Protection Agency for permission to make state emission standards tougher than federal standards for 1977 autos.

The EPA is expected to grant that permission within two weeks, despite testimony from 22 foreign and domestic automakers that Californians would have to pay from $110 to $215 extra for catalytic smog devices for 1977 cars.

Carmakers also predicted costly repairs and reduced gas mileage would be the result.

Bob Estes of the Motor Car Dealers Association of Southern California told the EPA the tighter standards would "close down five automobile factories in California, create job losses in manufacturing and auto dealerships, radically reduce the $550 million the state collects from new car sales tax...."

Skull lifted, then replaced; boy lives

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — A rare operation in which half of a boy's skull was removed and then replaced several weeks later has saved the boy's life, University of Minnesota doctors report.

Bryan Sandidge, 12, was to be released from University of Minnesota Hospitals today. Attired in blue jeans, sweater and green surgical cap, he participated in a news conference Tuesday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Sandidge, Deadwood, S.D.

Although the surgery has made it difficult temporarily for him to speak, Bryan said he felt "fine."

When Bryan was flown to University Hospitals from St. Luke's Hospital, Watertown, S.D., on Feb. 7, he was in such an advanced stage of Reyes Syndrome that doctors felt there was no chance of saving him with conventional techniques.

The disease, which affects only children, is believed to be caused by an infection which sometimes follows a viral infection such as some types of influenza.

On Feb. 8, Dr. James Ausman, assistant professor of neurology, performed the surgery. Bryan's skull was removed from a point just above the eyes to the middle of his head, thus relieving the pressure on his brain. The skin was then put back loosely over his brain.

Bryan began to improve within 6 hours. But it was 10 days before he came out of the coma. The section of skull, which had been kept in a sterile container, was replaced March 26.

Mrs. Pearl T. Vaughan, 84, of 7509 Hellman Ave., Cucamonga, died Monday evening at San Bernardino County Medical Center of burns suffered in a home accident Saturday.

MAN SHOT BY MISTAKE

VAN NUYS (AP)—A 21-year-old man was shot and wounded by a police officer who mistook a bracelet on the man's arm for a weapon, a police spokesman said.

The spokesman said Officers Elliot Rada and Walter Adkins responded to a family disturbance call Tuesday at the home of Charles White and his wife, Latricia, 28.

The officers said they found White in a bedroom with his hands beneath a blanket. When he pulled his hands out, the spokesman said, Rada noticed something shining and he fired one shot which hit White.

White was reported in serious condition in County-USC Medical Center.

Officers said they booked the couple for investigation of possession of marijuana.

Frustration put to work selling maps

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A Los Angeles businessmen who spent an hour driving around Philidelphia two years ago trying to obtain a free road map from service stations, has put his frustration to work.

Jack Nutter, 51, designed a vending machine to sell road maps and formed Pacific Map Vending Co.

"It was no great stroke of genius," said Nutter, whose $150 vending machines offer a choice of three road maps. "Being in the vending business, it was a natural thing to do. I was lucky. I happened to get into it before anybody else," Nutter added.

Nutter said his firm has installed more than 3,000 map-vending machines in service stations across the country and in Canada.

"We've just begun to scratch the surface. There are upwards of 250,000 service stations in the country. We're placing our machines in hotels, motels and other places catering to the motorist as well," he said.

Sacramento area experiment

Milk plunges nine cents

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Milk prices at some major markets have plunged nine cents a half-gallon in the Sacramento area, where the state has lifted retail milk price controls.

Tim Wallace, state director of agriculture, announced the first suspension of milk price controls in 38 years in the state, effective last Sunday and running indefinitely.

If the Sacramento experiment shows consumers can buy milk and grocers can still make profits, hearings may be held to spread the program elsewhere, Wallace said.

Alpha Beta markets ran a full-page newspaper advertisement Sunday and Monday announcing their cut from 68 cents to 59 cents for a half gallon of regular milk.

Dan Spengler, executive secretary of the Northern California Grocers Association, which represents independent markets, said such independents as Bel Air, Jumbo and Raley's were losing money by meeting the competitive price.

Al Nissen of the Alpha Beta chain said its markets are "still making a profit on milk. Our reason for coming out at 59 cents was to get the customer's attention. We thought it important to be first."

Major chains said they do not intend to sell milk at a loss or create a milk price war.

"Our philosophy is that we don't ever intend to sell below cost because that envisions that we'd have to raise other items, and we don't believe in that kind of merchandising," said Bill Shea, vice president of Lucky Stores.

However, Spengler said that independents, who do not have their own milk processing plants are at a disadvantage.

"If you listen to the advertisements for the chains, you would think they are operating philanthropic organizations rather than businesses," he said.

Marijuana law on floor of Assembly

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Legislation liberalizing California's marijuana law cleared its last committee Tuesday and was sent to the Assembly floor.

Sen. George Moscone, a San Francisco Democrat, predicted his measure would win Assembly approval, Senate approval of Assembly amendments and probably Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s signature.

"Brown has said he would sign a bill like the Oregon law, and this is like the Oregon law," Moscone said after the Assmbly Ways and Means Committee voted 11-7 to send his bill to the floor.

Moscone said his bill makes possession of marijuana a misdemeanor and allows persons caught with an ounce or less to be given a citation instead of being booked on a formal charge.

If a person is found guilty of possession, he or she faces a maximum penalty of a $100 fine, Moscone said.

Missing school is basis of suit filed by illegal alien

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two state assemblymen and a 7year-old girl are suing the state and a rural grade school over the practice in some areas of refusing to let illegal aliens or their children into classes.

The suit, filed by Democratic assemblymen Arthur Torres and Richard Alatorre of Los Angeles, also wants the court to stop the policy of some districts of reporting illegal aliens' names to immigration officials.

The 7-year-old girl, Maria De Loudres of El Centro, has missed two years of school because her mother feared the daughter would be deported. This year, the suit added, the mother was told illegal aliens couldn't even register in the El Centro School District.

The assemblymen, whose suit actually was prepared by the California Rural Legal Assistance, asserts that a federal act is violated by the state education code that requires alien reporting to qualify for special funds. The federal law is the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act under which public release of personal information about pupils is forbidden.

Also the suit claims that keeping children out of school violates the state's requirement for youngsters aged 6-16 to attend classes.

Da Nang airport today--a transport center for provincial government

By DANIEL DE LUCE

Copyright (c) 1975 The Associated Press. All Rights Reserved

DA NANG AIR BASE, South Vietnam (AP) — The Da Nang air base, which was constructed at a cost of hundreds of millions of American dollars in the mid-1960s for the biggest bombing campaign in the history of air warfare, is now a new key transport center for the Provisional Revolutionary Government of South Vietnam.

The base and the city were abandoned by South Vietnamese forces last month and occupied by Communist-led troops.

An Ilyushin-18 airliner with 80 passengers flew here from Hanoi Monday morning in one hour and 20 minutes. It landed on a broad concrete runway that is one of longest in world. The runway's surface looked to be in first-class condition.

A half-dozen American-made military helicopters were visible in a maze of revetments near the air passenger lounge. Far across the field, the khaki tails of perhaps half a dozen U.S.-made dozen fighter-bombers could be seen.

In front of an intact hanger stood a large yellow mobile crane. Nearby was a red tank truck, both were American-made. In the glass walled control tower, the equipment which Americans installed and the Saigon government air force left behind now serves the new governmental power here. The tower looks completely undamaged.

Power lines lead into administration offices, maintenance hangers and storage buildings.

There are no cut, dangling lines or broken poles. Here and there are such Ameican-made items as two-wheeled manually operated fire extinguisher units, munitions trailers and four-wheel-drive motor vehicles.

The air passenger lounge is located near the former administration building of Saigon air force Squadron 213.

The squadron's insignia is a colorful bird of prey with forked lightning in its talons. This insignia still decorates the outside wall of the building. No graffiti mars it.

In the lounge, furnished mostly with American-made upholstered chairs and couches, passengers are served tall glasses of Coca-Cola by PRG hostess Nguyen Duy Trinh, formerly a teacher of Vietnam literature in a Da Nang school. She is slender and graceful with waist length dark hair. She wears the traditional Ao Dai. Hers is a floral design in white and rose.

There is a large picture of Ho Chi Minh over the doorway of the lounge and on one wall hangs a long red cloth with one of the quotations from North Vietnam's late leader: "Nothing is more precious than independence and freedom."

Doan Twong, 20, bespectacled former underground journalist now employed by the PRG bureau of foreign affairs in Da Nang, greets the arriving foreign press parties in the lounge. He says that so far there have been Soviet, Chinese, Czechoslovak, Japanese and East German newsmen. Today's arrivals from The Associated Press are the first Americans.

Doan Twong said North Vietnamese President Nguyen Huu Tho arrived here last week for an official visit to Da Nang and Hue. He was in Quang Ngai today. Municipal celebrations of the takeover of these cities marked his tour. Madame Nguyen Thi Binh, PRG foreign minister, has also arrived here by plane.

A fleet of Ilyushin propjets of the Hanoi government is available to provide daily air links to the Da Nang air base. The contrast between the crowded Gia Lam Airport across the Red River from Hanoi and the vast concrete sweep of the Da Nang air base is striking. Gia Lam still bears signs of damage from the B52 bombing at Christmas time in 1972. As yet its runways are just propjet length.

According to reminiscing veteran correspondents of the Viet Nam war, Da Nang air base in 1966 was busier than Chicago's O'Hare Airport. U.S. F4 fighter bombers raided the Hanoi area from here.

When I first saw this air base in May 1970, its role was chiefly logistical as far as American forces were concerned. But the Saigon air force was stepping up its bombing operations from here.

Nearby on "Monkey Mountain," a U.S. Marine ground control center code-named "Nice Squad" directed bombing strikes south of the 17th parallel demilitarized zone by Marine F4s from fighter-bomber units at Chu Lai.

But at Da Nang air base itself there were large fleets of military transport planes, helicopter troop carriers and bristling gun ships, artillery spotter planes, and both high and low flying reconnaissance aircraft.

Occasionally guerrilla mortar squads moved in close at night and damaged some planes on the ground. Usually, however, the war seemed quite remote from Da Nang air base in 1970.

It seems even more so today.

Of 80 passengers on Monday's Ilyushin flight from Hanoi some wore uniforms of PRG's National Liberation Forces. They included young women. Also aboard was a group of six Chinese in civilian clothes who were described as experts on shipping operations.

They were to inspect Da Nang Harbor in advance of the arrival of a Chinese freighter carrying goods and other supplies for Da Nang's population of more than one million.

The flight in broad daylight over the Vietnamese coastline for some 500 miles was a dramatic contrast to the way the International Control Commission plane used to creep into Hanoi once a week at night, bringing a handful of foreigners.

Although I stared hard out of the window, I could not see any bomb craters in the coastal rice fields of North Vietnam which once was blasted by tens of thousands of bombs.

They were a shocking sight when I made a road trip there in 1970 during American bombing.

In five years nearly all must have been filled in by farmers.

Quang Tri, the South Vietnamese province bordering the former dimilitarized zone, is still a carpet of craters. It will take a tremendous effort by returning farmers to make such land productive again. In Quang Tri City, which was nearly wiped out in the war, there is a considerable amount of new building under way.

From the air, Da Nang is a bustling city, but its harbor waits for shipping to resume its former importance.

Like Da Nang air base, it is underutilized now.

U.S. split over Texas

The major issue in the election of 1844 was the annexation of Texas, over which the country was divided.

New state health, welfare chief:

Not a 'prisoner of bureaucracy'

OAKLAND (AP) — California's new health and welfare secretary, who grew up on welfare during the 1930s, vows he won't become a "prisoner" of bureaucracy and statistics in his new job.

Mario Obledo spent 17 hours at Oakland's Employment Services office, talking to staffers and jobless benefits claimants about their problems and frustrations.

"People call you by your title, make you feel important," said Obledo of his post. "They pay you big money. You buy better clothes, eat better food, you get tied up in the office all day long with civil servants telling you what you want to hear.

"Then before you know it, all you see are numbers and names and numbers, and you lose the feeling for what's behind it all — the broken lives, the despair, the misery.

The secretary sympathized with claimants who said they were getting a bureaucratic runaround and told one man who despaired of supporting his family on welfare: "I understand. It's terrible. We've somehow got to get the government humanized."

BAND FESTIVAL

Bob Henry of Pomona Noon Kiwanis Club, rear left, and Fred Graff of Pomona public schools, plan music for All-City Band Festival Thursday. Representing the three bands to participate are Ken Sockwell, left, Garey High School; Guy Danley, Pomona High School, center; and Joe Williams, Ganesha High School.

Claremont moves toward joining county fire dept.

The Claremont City Council Tuesday night instructed the city staff to draw up a resolution requesting approval of the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors for Claremont's annexation to the county Consolidated Fire District.

The council probably will adopt the resolution at its May 13 meeting.

Members requested City Atty. William Bergman to prepare the resolution after hearing a county fire department representative explain what they might expect in services.

Ronald E. Fry, assistant chief in the administrative division for the county department, explained that in case of a fire in a commerical, industrial or other high-hazard area, the county would respond with three engine companies, a paramedic squad, a snorkel truck company and a battalion chief or a total of 18 men.

By coincidence, just as the council was adjourning its meeting, a fire broke out in the basement of Harwood Court, a Pomona College dormitory, but the sprinkler system quickly put out the fire, leaving firemen with a foot of water to pump out.

Two Claremont engine companies and a Pomona engine company by mutual aid responded to the alarm.

Under the county system, the alarm would have brought four county trucks to the fire.

Fry answered most questions posed to him, except the disposition of Fire Station 2 if the city annexed to the county district.

Councilmen learned that the savings to the taxpayers in 1975-76 by going into the county fire district would be between $50,000 and $80,000.

Councilman Frank Hungerford estimated that if the city annexes, indications are good that the fire insurance rating would be moved from Class 5 to Class 4, which could mean a reduction of up to 10 per cent for commercial clients, and also a reduction for home owners having just a fire insurance policy.

Fry explained that since 1967 six cities have been annexed to the district, 67 fireman positions have been eliminated through attrition, 28 pieces of apparatus have been retired, and $1 million has been saved annually.

He said that the cities of Glendora, Lynwood, West Covina, and Whittier are considering joining the district.

Claremont's savings during the 1974-75 fiscal year could have been $46,143 if it were in the district, Fry explained.

He said that the fire district 1975-76 tax rate could go from 76 cents per $100 assessed valuation to 84 cents, depending on several factors such as four cents more if the Supreme Court upholds the Fair Labor Standards Act as it applies to firemen and overtime.

To a question of why the county couldn't use the city's Fire Station 2 on Base Line Road instead of the county station 102 on Sumner Avenue, Fry explained that Station 102 is a Department of Forestry station.

He further explained that the county fire protection district and department of forestry, though both are part of the county fire department, are separate entities with separate budgets.

Fry said that if the county could not use the city's fire station 1 on Second Street because an agency declared it unsound and the county must build a new station, the county could use Fire Station 2 "temporarily."

"If Fire Station 1 were condemned, we could adequately cover the city with Station 2," he said.

Fry said that annexation to the county fire district usually takes about six weeks from the time an agreement is signed.

He said that the resolution of intent is not binding, but puts the Board of Supervisors on notice.

Fry said that Claremont's 19 firemen would be absorbed into the county district with a reduction in rank but an increase in salary.

Claremont Colleges hit by Chicano faculty strikes

Faculty members of the Chicano Studies Center at the Claremont Colleges, unhappy that the colleges have not approved a $35,000 pre-freshman summer tutoring program, went on strike this week and chose a different college campus each day to air their demands.

Mrs. Sally Nittler, assistant administrator at the center and a student at the Claremont Graduate School, said the refusal of the college presidents to approve the summer program for 30 students is a "symptom of the over-all attitudes of the administrators towards the minorities."

She explained that students who have already been accepted at the colleges live on campus free for five weeks and are paid $400 while they are given additional orientation about college life and tutoring in reading and writing.

Mrs. Nittler also compalined that the faculty at the studies center do not enjoy a provision for promotion and tenure, and that they do not have enough office space.

"We are asking that the staff and faculty be eligible for academic advisory status," she said.

Mrs. Nittler also complained that the time members of the center began negotiations with the academic deans last fall, and had asked for firm answers by January without success.

Three Pomona bands to play in Kiwanis project

The Pomona Noon Kiwanis Club is sponsoring an All-City Band Festival at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Pomona High School gym.

Bands from Pomona, Ganesha and Garey high schools will join together to create a combined organization of 175 musicians.

Their guest conductor will be William Hill, conductor of the Cal State Los Angeles Symphonic Band and teacher of woodwinds and orchestration at the college.

This festival will be Kiwanis Club's Youth Services Committee's major project of the year. Expenses for the guest conductor, tickets, and police security will be paid by the club.

All proceeds will be divided among the three bands.

Tickets are $1 for adults and 50 cents for students. They may be purchased from any junior or senior band member, any member of the Kiwanis Club or at the door.

As an added Kiwanis Club Major Emphasis Committee project, 50 senior citizens from Churchman's Center in Pomona will be bused to the festival as club guests.

The Kiwanis Club is "dedicated to the development of local youth and [illegible] band festival will add a great deal to the music program in Pomona's high schools," said committee members.

They are Larry Grant, Bob Henry, Vern Weigand, Joe Anderson, Ed Jamies, Frank Berry, Art Perez and Paul Escoffery.

Parents plead to keep him

Board accepts resignation of Chino High's principal

Amid controversy and a plea from parents and teachers not to accept the resignation of Chino High School Principal Terry Terril, the school board Tuesday night accepted it "with great reluctance."

Board members said they understood the concerns of some parents and teachers over Terril's resignation, but they had "no choice" but to accept it.

Augustine Tapia, board president, said "when a person wants to leave we can't force him to stay. We understand the feelings presented tonight. It was not an easy resignation to accept."

After a half-hour closed personnel session, trustee Roy Ward stated the board was accepting the resignation, and directing a letter of recommendation be prepared for Terril.

Tapia added that Terril handled the "racial situation" at the high school well, but "employer-employe relations are a different story." (Terril charged a handful of teachers at the school with unprofessional conduct in a Monday statement, and said he was resigning in protest.)

Ann Harris, president of the school's parent-faculty group, presented a petition signed by about 30 persons supporting Terril. "He has excellent rapport with students," she said, "and has maintained order on campus. On campus violence has not been a problem in the past two years."

"I remember jerking my kids off campus before because of riots," said Wally Schaaf, a parent. "I recall the marijuana tree and the indestructible wall. But when Terril came on campus two years ago, the fear was gone."

170 Pomona students get closeup view of jobs at valley businesses

Some 170 seniors from Pomona's three high schools today spent 5½ hours getting a preview of the future in business in Pomona.

Called Future in Business Day, the event was sponsored by the Pomona Chamber of Commerce, in cooperation with the Pomona Unified School District.

The seniors were distributed among 85 businesses (64 in Pomona and one in Upland) and given a chance to see firsthand what experience was required, what the skills needed to do the job were, what prospects for jobs now are, and what the future holds in each occupational field.

Some of the students actually got to do some work in the vocational field they had selected to investigate.

"In these days of rising unemployment, it becomes increasingly important that our young people are exposed to the real world and are made aware of career options, trends and the necessary education or training that will be required of them," said John Felton, chairman of the chamber's education committee.

Felton said students were assigned to spend the day with men and women in business, industry, government and the professions who explained functions, skills and education required for their occupations.

"Participation of the working people in this very worthwhile program is necessary in preparing our young people for their places in the sun," said Felton.

The students reported at their various FIB Day assignments at 9 a.m. Their work days started off with tours after which they were shown precisely what work was being done.

The students had lunch with their hosts. After lunch, more time was spent on the job. They were returned to their schools at 2:30 p.m.

Felton said more businesses and professional people signed up to take students than there were students signed up to participate in the one-day career education program.

20 windows at Mountain View School smashed

Twenty windows were broken by vandals last weekend at Mountain View School in Claremont, school officials reported today.

The vandals apparently climbed over the roof of one of the class buildings to reach the locked patio of the intermediate grade quad and to lob rocks through various windows.

Maintenance men estimated damage at about $700.

Also broken in another part of the school was glass in a teacher's lounge door.

The maintenance men also replaced glass broken in five windows at Condit Thursday, seven small windows in the ticket booth and snack area at Claremont High Friday, and glass in an electrically-operated door at Danbury School Saturday.

Gem show at fairgrounds this weekend

The third annual Million Dollar Gem Show is scheduled Saturday and Sunday at Building 5, Los Angeles County Fairgrounds, Pomona.

Included in the show will be rock carving demonstrations, sphere making, 160 display cases filled with gems and minerals and 46 dealers handling many kinds of materials, including Indian jewelry.

First presented in 1972, the show is sponsored by the La Puente Gems and Minerals Club, the El Monte Gem and Minerals and Canyon City Lapidary of Azusa.

Proceeds from the show will go to the California Federation of Mineralological Societies for their scholarship fund, the Los Angeles County Museum Department of Mineralogy, plus donations to local schools, medical reserach and police work.

Hours of the show are 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday.

Arson suspected in Boys' Club fire

Firemen now suspect arson in the $36,000 blaze which gutted the gymnasium of the Pomona Boys' Club Tuesday morning.

Officials questioned several suspects Tuesday but all were released.

According to investigators, the blaze was caused by someone who stacked up papers in the gym and then set them on fire.

The gym is still standing but its interior was damaged about $28,000. The loss to the content is estimated at $5,-.000.

Warren Arthur, director of the club, said that although the gym was insured, it may take more than two months to repair the damages.

The gym was built 6½ years ago and is used by more than 1,000 boys in Pomona.

County groups call meet on Claremont plan

The Claremont Civic Association and the Claremont Foothill Association, groups of residents living in county territory north of Base Line Road, will host a joint meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Condit Elementary School.

The two groups called the meeting to discuss the implementation of the city's General Plan in the area north of Foothill Boulevard.

Said Ted Criley, CFA president, "We are vitally interested in the future of our area."

He said that the Local Agency Formation Commission has indicated that the county area is in Claremont's sphere of influence, but that the county Planning Commission ignores Claremont's General Plan during zoning hearings.

Traditional plan added

Chino reaches school compromise

By JON MORRIS
P-B Staff Writer

The plan that probably comes closest to pleasing everyone on the controversial year-round school issue in Chino was given final approval by the Board of Education Tuesday night.

Under the plan, a traditional school alternative to YRS will be offered at each elementary and junior high school in 1975-76 "if enrollment is sufficient to operate an educationally sound program."

Trustees also voted final approval to the motion offered at last week's meeting to retain the same scheduling system next year at Don Lugo High School. Currently, students are offered a choice of either year-round or traditional systems.

At the elementary and junior high level, the board agreed that if enough students do not enroll in a traditional schedule, campuses would be paired with neighboring schools to provide a traditional option.

In short, there would be one traditional program between two schools—or perhaps even three, according to a recommendation by Supt. Royce Lapp.

Lapp's proposal, based on enrollment figures gleaned from a recent parent survey, is to operate a traditional schedule at Marshall, Glenmeade and Gird schools only. The Marshall program would also be for Newman and Walnut students, Glenmeade for Los Serranos School students and Gird for El Rancho.

It would mean adding just two new traditional programs since Gird already offers the alternative. There was no suggestion on possible junior high scheduling.

Although Lapp urged the board to make a decision on exactly which schools would offer traditional scheduling, trustees deferred action until next Tuesday.

Lapp said all elementary schools except Walnut and El Rancho met requirements of the traditional program. The board earlier said about 116 students must enroll to provide the program.

Marshall, Los Serranos and Glenmeade actually were below the 116 figure, but not by much.

A majority of the parents surveyed expressed disenchantment with the proposal of traditional alternative at a neighboring school. "In other words, parents most did not want their children to travel," explained Lapp.

Trustee Lyle Briggs, basing his motion on the fact "not all surveys have come in yet," moved to table the superintendent's proposal until Tuesday. Board member Al McCombs opposed the motion in a 4-1 vote.

A packed board room again greeted trustees, but only three persons spoke. The YRS issue had been thoroughly discussed at a three-hour hearing April 18. During that meeting, trustee Pete VanderPoel offered the compromise of having traditional alternative on each campus —and it was tentatively approved.

A strong pro-YRS faction showed up Tuesday night, wearing green "YES-YRS" tags, but foes of the program also were present.

All three speakers supported the compromise proposed by board members.

Tina Middleton, a seventh grader at Magnolia Junior High, presented a list of 92 signatures on a petition favoring the traditional alternative.

Linda Olson, spokesman for Chino Federation of Teachers (CFT) said there is "general support (68 per cent) from teachers" on VanderPoel's motion.

Arlin Knight, a parent, said offering the alternative is "obviously" the best choice.

Doctors seek malpractice cure

The medical malpractice crisis has suddenly assumed nationwide proportions. Like most crises, however, this one did not just appear out of nowhere.

Annual malpractice insurance premiums paid by the nation's doctors and hospitals, which totalled about $61 million in 1960, has soared to the half-billion-dollar mark. In 1968, a California judge handed down the first million-dollar award, and while such huge settlements have not yet become commonplace, the frequency and size of malpractice claims have been steadily climbing.

Last year, reports Barron's magazine, the number of malpractice suits jumped 70 per cent over 1973 and the size of awards rose 20 per cent. Much the same thing is true of out-of-court settlements.

The unsurprising result is that insurance companies have been getting out of this end of the business in droves and those that remain have been imposing fantastic increases in premiums. And the consequence of this is that many physicians have opted for early retirement and others are seriously concerned whether they can remain in the profession.

One major underwriter says that one of every 10 of its insured doctors has a claim pending against him. According to John A. McMahon, president of the American Hospital Assn., hospitals in 14 states are under the threat of having their malpractice insurance cancelled.

The threat is real, and is not confined to such suit-prone states as California or New York.

Last January, Providence Hospital in Anchorage, Alaska, closed its operating room to elective surgery for two weeks when its anesthesiologists could not obtain insurance. More recently, anesthesiologists in Mansfield, Ohio, refusing to work without adequate malpractice coverage, halted all but emergency operations in the city's two hospitals.

There are any number of explanations for the phenomenon, any number of "culprits."

There is, for instance, the "Marcus Welby Syndrome." Americans, seeing television's famous doctor, who has only one patient a week to whom he devotes 24-hour-a-day attention, have simply come to expect too much, it is said. They are reacting against the overspecialization and depersonalization of modern medical practices even as, at the same time, they expect miracle cures.

Doctors blame the legal profession for its contingency fee system under which lawyers may collect up to 50 per cent of a settlement and which, they claim, encourages "nuisance" suits. Lawyers in turn defend the system as the only way ordinary people can take their grievances to court and indict the medical profession for not doing enough to weed out its incompetents.

In any event, all Americans are affected by the crisis because the costs are inevitably passed on to them. Hospital patients are now paying about $10 a day per bed for insurance alone, says the AHA's McMahon. A rising proportion of the cost of a visit to a doctor's office goes for insurance, as well for elaborate tests doctors feel they must prescribe in order to protect themselves.

Bills have been introduced in a number of states in an attempt to remedy the problem. Solutions include setting up arbitration boards, limiting the size of any single malpractice claim, putting restrictions on percentage fees lawyers can charge on jury awards and requiring insurers to pool risks as they do for drivers unable to obtain automobile insurance. The latter provision has been embodied in bills that have been enacted or proposed in some dozen states at latest count.

One thing is certain, and that is that a nation which prides itself on the quality of its medical care must do something, and soon, to solve this doctors' — and patients' — dilemma.

Fore!

In modern day athletics when the marvelous machine called man hits new heights of achievement the arbiters of sport invariably move in with rule changes to make the game tougher. Witness relocated football goal posts, lowered baseball pitching mounds and on ad infinitum.

These are "improvements" instituted largely for the spectator who usually gets no closer to the field of competition than his living room tube. They don't do much for the players.

Now, however, two California scientists have come up with a revolutionary new golf ball design which they say should reduce those plagues of all duffers, the hook and the slice. Their aerodynamically redesigned pellet is to be tested by golf's rulemakers but they're already hinting that it may not be approved as it may make the game too easy.

If the game's powers-that-be persist we may still see Jack occasionally hook into the rough or Johnny slice into the water, but we'll wager that the Sunday golfer will be hitting them a lot straighter. There's no way THAT golf ball is going to be kept off the links.

Getting to the heart of crime

Your front page headlines "Arm Yourself" simply encourages opportunities for crime.

In 1970, there were 213 murders in Tokyo, of which 3 were with pistols. In that same year, New York, with a third less population than Tokyo, had 1,117 murders, two-thirds with guns.

America has a disgraceiul crime rate. It increased seventeen percent in 1974. Availability of hand guns increases the violence and risk of death in crime.

In the last 45 years there have been four national non-partisan commission on crime: The Wickersham Commission of 1931; the Katzenbach Commission of 1967; the Kerner Commission of 1968; and the Milton Eisenhower Commission of 1969. They all say about the same thing: "Warring on poverty inadequate housing and unemployment is warring on crime. A Civil Rights Law is a law against crime. Money for schools is money against crime. Medical, psychiatric and family counseling services are services against crime. More broadly, and most importantly, every effort to improve life in America's inner cities is an effort against crime."

The President's Commission on Law Enforcement found that the law-breaker is likely to be a member of the lowest social and economic groups in the country, poorly educated and perhaps unemployed. Reports from the Commissions indicate that serious crime increases when unemployment increases. If we want to get at the heart of crime, we should pay attention to the national commissions on the causes of crime and get after these causes. Meanwhile, the Eisenhower Commission of five years ago found that there were 24 million hand guns in America. If we want to cut down the homicide rate, we have to start cutting down on the availability of hand guns, whose main use is against people. — Stephen Zetterberg, Claremont.

JACK ANDERSON

Marcos rejects mercy plea

WASHINGTON — The mother of the Philippines' imprisoned opposition leader, Sen. Benigno S. Aquino Jr., expects her son to die.

She still calls him "Ninoy," his childhood nickname. "My heart is full of anguish," she writes. "We believe Ninoy has no chance . . . For freedom, for justice, for truth, he will die."

Her letter was smuggled out of the Philippines and delivered to me by relatives, who appealed to me to intervene with President Ferdinand Marcos to save Aquino's life.

The outspoken, 42-year-old opposition leader has been charged with murder and subversion. He swears the charges were trumped up to stop him from criticizing the Marcos dictatorship.

Marcos used to be my friend before he seized dictatorial powers. When I visited Manila, I would drop by Malacanang, the presidential place, for dinner with him and his wife, Imelda. On my last visit, the lovely Imelda took my wife and daughters on a sight-seeing-shopping tour.

Marcos has a quick smile and an easy manner. But a sudden earnestness would overtake him when he spoke about his dream for the Philippines. He would talk about breaking the power of the wealthy oligarchs and freeing his people from economic bondage. He wanted to make the Philippines, he would say, "a country of equals."

It was hard to doubt his sincerity.

Invoking our past friendship, I sent Marcos a personal message through the Philippine embassy. I urged him to free his rival as a humanitarian gesture and let him come to the United States.

I have just received President Marcos' reply. "I wish to thank you," he cabled, "for your kind thoughts and friendly feelings for us conveyed to me through our Philippine ambassador in Washington. I welcome your desire to discuss with me directly the case of former Senator Aquino . . ."

But the president, citing the "pending serious charges" against his chief critic, concluded: "It is therefore necessary to allow termination of trial of these cases and related court preceedings."

In my message, I had mentioned the family's fear that Aquino might be executed. Responded Marcos: "It is my hope that you will not listen or give credence to an alleged plot to liquidate former Senator Aquino as mentioned in your cable, for it has no basis in fact."

Then he added a comment, which struck me as ominous. The prosecution has charged that several witnesses against Aquino have been mysteriously murdered. "If he is released," suggested Marcos, "he might be killed by relatives of (the murdered) witnesses."

When a dictator adverrtises in advance that his chief opponent may be killed by unidentified enemies, it has the smell of a set-up. Aquino, you see, had a perfect alibi; he couldn't have killed the witnesses. He happened to be safely in custody when the witnesses were allegedly done in. Therefore, the vengeful relatives, whom Marcos suggests may now try to kill Aquino, would be waylaying the wrong man.

The witnesses against Aquino are captured guerrillas who have agreed to testify for the state in return for their own freedom. "They go around in flashy cars," Aquino's mother charges in her handwirtten letter. "And to think these killers' words have weight against a legislator of the land in his New Society."

She contends that feelers were sent to her son "that if he signs statements endorsing martial law and the New Society, everything will be dropped, he will be released.

"But . . . true to his forebears, he can die for his convictions. He believes in the freedom of man and his dignity, and no one can enslave anybody."

In protest, Aquino has gone on a hunger strike. "This hunger strike," writes his mother, "he has mulled this over and over, believing perhaps it will awaken our fearful people.

"I really don't know what to do. As a mother, I am 'sorrowful unto death.' Please do something for us here."

Lowenstein's 'second gun' theory

"I'm not against anybody for any ism he might believe in except nuttism, skingameism and Communism." — Earl K. Long

In the dim distant past, when what was then referred to as the Nuttist Right had a corner on the Devil Theory & Conspiracy market, a certain professor at the University of Illinois, one Revilo Oliver, wrote and had published an article concerning the Pentagon's lurid, indeed subversive role in the John F. Kennedy assassination case.

It was a pip. According to Oliver — as the story was related by William F. Buckley, Jr., in his 1971 book, "Cruising Speed" — the Pentagon brass knew in advance that their Commander-in-Chief was to be assassinated, and "secretly rehearsed his forthcoming funeral."

Buckley, representing sanity-on-the-right, dismissed that thesis as "moonshine"; for which deviation from the True Anti-Communist Faith he was consigned by Oliver to the category of unwitting handmaiden to the Big Red Conspiracy.

Nevertheless, Buckley, taking into consideration Oliver's scholarly achievements in other areas, entered a strong public protest when University of Illinois trustees moved to strip the professor of academic tenure as a result of his authorship of the JFK-Pentagon conspiracy piece.

At the time, other responsible voices joined Buckley's in his protest. In an era when the extra-academic excesses of left-wing professors are tolerated on campuses the country over, the Oliver case emerged as a test of whether, when the phrase "academic freedom" is uttered by liberals, they mean it to apply to extremist dissenters on the right as well as the left.

To be sure, I do not have a definitive list of all those figures, public and private, who came to Revilo Oliver's defense at that time (not to support his theory, understand — only his right to express it without suffering banishment at the hands of the Illinois academic establishment).

But I would remember — I am virtually certain I would remember — if one Allard Lowenstein, doctrinaire liberal supreme, had been among that number.

It could be that when the roll was called on behalf of freedom of dialogue in the Revilo Oliver case, Mr. Lowenstein was there; in which event — if the gentleman can take the time away from his current occupation of preempting the Nuttist Right's monopoly on conspiratorial moonshine — I will welcome his correcting my memory.

Meanwhile I will contemplate Lowenstein's recent complaint, on the Buckley television show, "Firing Line," that this columnist unreasonably heaped words of ridicule on his theory that Sirhan Sirhan did not fire the gun that killed Robert F. Kennedy.

Lowenstein has been on the talk show circuit of late, explaining with a serious face — Lenny Bruce used to deliver equally wild material much more entertainingly — how there was another person, another gun in that Los Angeles hotel kitchen that fatal June night in 1968. A transposition of the old claptrap we are accustomed to hearing about the John Kennedy assassination.

In any case, or Nuttist questioning thereof, much as Professor Oliver took umbrage at those who belittled his mind-numbing theory, so was Allard Lowenstein distressed, he told host Buckley, that in a democratic society his thesis should be subject to "conservative . . . epithets" (from me, not Buckley) rather than serious discussion.

What can I say, other than to plead guilty to everything in Lowenstein's complaint? Except for that "epithet" business. I did ridicule his cause. But I did not epithetemize it — any more than Buckley did Revilo Oliver's — for the very good reason that epithets are heaped on truly serious matters. And Lowenstein's "second gun" theory, I repeat, is a parody. A farce. To borrow a term, moonshine.

Ah, but there is a difference between the Revilo Olivers and the Allard Lowensteins, isn't there? For while the Nuttism of the right is given short shrift, that of the left cannot be shurgged off so easily; if only because the Lowensteins are invited to make the talk show circuit, yea, even onto the campuses to water the seeds of unreason with their drivel.

So I must, after all, treat Allard Lowenstein's current occupation with something more than a heap of ridicule, which I intend to, in my next column.

Just in jest

The Surgeon General's warning didn't do it. —Increased taxes on cigarettes also failed. So, if people are going to keep right on smoking in spite of all such government deterrents, why not just relax and cash in on their obstinacy? If we can't beat 'em let's enjoin 'em. Let's make those nicotine addict diehards pay for the privilege of smoking by forcing them to purchase smoking permits. The money thus derived couid well be used to finance the subsidies the government is paying to tobacco growers to produce more tobacco.

No consolation for honest men

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — I have just received the following note from a dear Vietnamese friend:

"All is finished. There is (not) any hope to save a free South Vietnam. I wait for the latest declaration of Mr. Ford to write to you because I expect to find out some changes in the policy of the United States I expect to find out some changes in the policy of the United States toward the government of Saigon. But I am really despaired. Only one thing is comforting: the hope that we can be saved by a vast emigration promised by your President.

"In 1971 I returned from the United States because I believed that we can still save a free South Vietnam. But now this free Vietnam can exist only a few weeks or a few months. So that we can have only one choice: to live as stateless persons where we can find a promised land.

"Can you give me some comforting news? Can you enlighten me about the future? Here we talk nothing but abandon and emigration. Can we expect another sort?"

"In this pessimistic prospect, I hope to hear from you and send you my best wishes."

This is no soft Saigon native. My friend as a youth fought for many years as a guerrilla in Vietnam's war to free itself from the French. He was, for a long time, national secretary of South Vietnam's newspapermen's union. He has of late been publisher of a small hard hitting newspaper regularly in trouble with President Thieu because of his frankness.

Whenever I would visit Vietnam in the old days, he would take me to visit his friends. In the quagmire of politics, they were inevitably the honest ones. Among them:

A police chief forced out because he would not bow to corruption ordered from the President's palace.

The commandant of a noncommissioned officer's school who had to resign because he told his students to vote for whomever they personally believed in and refused to order them to vote for Thieu.

A gentle uncorruptable professor of mathematics who, for a time, was head of the South Vietnamese government until unintentional blunders by the then-American Ambassador forced him out. U.S. officials wrung their hands after discovering their mistake. But it was then too late to turn the hands of the clock back.

The former head of the foreign affairs committee of the South Vietnamese Senate, whom the Communists attempted to murder — getting his close friend instead — and politically attacked regularly by the successive military rulers of the South.

What then do we tell honest, decent men like my friend?

When he talked back to Thieu on the pages of his newspaper, he was censored or banned a day or a week. Under Hanoi, of course, he will have no paper. But if he did talk back to the new rulers, which he would most certainly do, being a man and not a chameleon, his end would be fixed.

But his fate is sealed anyway. For he has a reputation as an outspoken man, which Hanoi cannot abide.

He knows and I know what the Communists will do.

Do we, like numbers of U.S. Senators and Representatives, say to him then, go make a political accommodation with the North Vietnamese? What settlement? Who would enforce it? How long would it last?

My friend, please remember, was a guerrilla under Ho and has seen the Hanoi men in action. Let us not attempt to beguile him with mealy-mouthed words.

Ironically, North Vietnam owes its own freedom from France in part to my friend and tens of thousands more like him in South Vietnam who fought in the wars in those earlier years.

Reader solves mystery of can tabs: they help blind

I've been meaning to let you know that I have one answer to questions you've received about the collection of flip tabs from aluminum cans to buy seeing eye dogs.

This is the way it works. As a "trash to treasure" chairman of a church auxiliary, I coordinate the collection of pull tabs, cans and other aluminum articles which are taken to a recycling center operated by Reynolds Metal Co. of Los Angeles in San Dimas.

The money raised this way is turned over to the Seeing Eye Dog Foundation. — J. T., Pomona.

You identified yourself as Mrs. Jean Thatcher and your church as Pilgrim Congregational in Pomona.

Anyone who wants to help the women's auxiliary of the church may take aluminum articles to the church office on weekdays between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. except for the noon hour.

Remember, please, that aluminum cans are the ones without seams and that TV trays and pie plates must be clean.

Until you contacted us, the best answer we had received about pull tab collections was regarding favorable side effects — good exercise for the obese and less litter.

Suspicion on the part of some readers that they were being collected only for private profit followed collections of empty cigarette packages said to be for kidney machine time, iron lungs and seeing eye dogs.

The cigarette package collections proved to be a hoax.

I worked for Pacific State Hospital from May 15, 1971, to Nov. 11, 1974.

During this time money was deducted from my check and deposited in a retirement fund.

After termination of my job I called my timekeeper in the personnel office. She said she would file a claim for me.

Now, five months later, I have received no money although it is supposed to take only six weeks.

I have called my timekeeper, the head of personnel, my program director, my nursing coordinator and nothing.

I also have not received my W-2 form for 1974. — L. S., Ontario.

Arthur E. Parks, personnel officer for Pacific State, says you left employment owing the state $56.43 as a result of having been overpaid for time you were absent.

He said you were given the option of returning the sum in cash or having it deducted from your retirement contributions.

You opted for the former, he told us, with the understanding that the hospital would not release your retirement contributions until this sum was received.

He said the hospital was still waiting although twice since he wrote to Action Line you had indicated you wanted to pay the money.

The hospital had previously provided you with a replacement W-2 form, he told us.

In a phone call a few days before the income tax deadline, according to Parks, you asked your former personnel clerk to quickly arrange for another W-2 form because you had misplaced the replacement.

"Since it was impossible to provide a copy on such short notice, the clerk went to the effort of threading a telephone maze in Sacramento to obtain the figures which constituted Mrs. S—'s form so that she would be inconvenienced as little as possible," he said.

The clerk who went to such effort to help you was crushed upon discovering what prompted his inquiry, Parks said.

Nevertheless, if Pacific State is in some way at fault he will cooperate, he informed us.

Several efforts by us to phone you have been unsuccessful. We have forwarded a copy of Parks' letter to you.

ANN LANDERS

By popular demand: repeat of 12 rules for a happy married life

Dear Ann Landers: A long while back you printed some Rules For a Happy Married Life. We moved recently and I lost that column. Will you please run it again? I want to have it hand-printed by a professional and give it to my son and his wife for their first anniversary. Thank you, Ann. — Louisiana Booster

Dear Booster: Here it is — and thanks for asking.

Rules for a Happy Married Life

1 — Never both be angry at once.

2 — Never yell at each other, unless the house is on fire.

3 — Yield to the wishes of the other as an exercise in self-discipline, if you can't think of a better reason.

4 — If you have a choice between making yourself look good or your mate — choose your mate.

5 — If you have any criticism, make it lovingly.

6 — Never bring up a mistake of the past.

7 — Neglect the whole world, rather than each other.

8 — Never let the day end without saying at least one complimentary thing to your life's partner.

9 — Never meet without an affectionate welcome.

10 — Never go to bed mad.

11 — When you've made a mistake, talk it out and ask for forgiveness.

12 — Remember, it takes two to make an argument. The one who is wrong is the one who will be doing most of the talking.

Dear Ann Landers: Here's a suggestion for "Desperate Wife" whose husband considers himself a "controlled alcoholic" and continues to drink. Having been married to one, I know what a distorted image those people have of themselves. They are in no position to evaluate their behavior — nor do they have the faintest notion of how they come across to others.

I hope "Desperate Wife" will rent or borrow a tape recorder and turn it on when her "controlled alcoholic" becomes sarcastic and argumentative. When he is sober she can then play it back to him. Maybe THEN he'll get the message. — Been In Her Boots

Dear Boots: Thanks for a good suggestion. It might make the difference. Let's hope so.

Dear Ann Landers: Please print this open letter to all Women's Libbers. It's time somebody spoke up. There are approximately 109 million women in the United States. Some of them MUST be traditionalists.

I am incensed because of the discrimination against the housewife. The woman who handles a job at an office, as well as one at home, is viewed as Super-Dame. If she is "only" a housewife and mother, she is made to feel that somehow she is inferior, lazy or copping out.

If a woman wishes to choose a job at home, let her be allowed to do so with pride, not shame or a feeling of inadequacy. There are plenty of rewards in being a good wife and the mother of three children. I don't want an outside job. So please, Libbers, leave me alone. — Content With My Lot

Dear C.: Thanks for your letter. I've had several from others who said the same thing, but you said it best.

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teen-Age Sex — Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120.

ERMA BOMBECK

$6 million for a woman is cheap

"Hey, television is putting together a six-million-dollar woman to go with the six-million-dollar man," I said to my husband.

"If she does windows and floors, it's a real bargain," he said.

"What kind of a chauvinist crack is that?"

"No crack. I just meant six million dollars is a rather conservative figure. Face it. I built you from scratch. The day after our wedding you fell apart like a television set the day after the warranty runs out."

"Are you suggesting you have put six million dollars into me?"

"All I know is we were married in August. In September, you had your tonsils out, a kidney infection, and a case of the mumps."

"What control did I have over the mumps?"

"Why didn't you get them when you were a little kid like everyone else?"

"Because we were poor!"

"In October, it was your feet. You had bunions and corns removed and an operation on your small toe. I'll never know how you got down the aisle!"

"I was pushed!" I said bitterly.

"In November, your teeth began to deteriorate, followed by that mysterious rash on your chest."

"Are you finished?"

"I had just begun. In December, it was an iron deficiency, and back problems. The rest of that first year runs together, but I know your eyes went in the spring, and you grated your thumb with the green pepper, and you had a plantar wart removed from your foot before the year was up."

"The way I look at it," I said, "is you built yourself a first-class machine. I run on black coffee and peanut butter, which is less than four cents a mile, do not overheat in the summer, start easily in the winter, haven't started using a lot of oil yet, have ample trunk space, a fairly good paint job, take you where you want to go, get you there on time, have withstood the wear and tear of children, don't take up a lot of parking space, and am still attractive enough to trade."

He didn't say anything for a minute, then he patted me on my trunk, smiled and said, "Forget it! Even with inflation, the most I could get for you on a trade would be four million."

LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Bowel needs roughage, not water

DEAR DR. LAMB — Does drinking a glass of water after a meal do any harm to the digestive system? This water is in place of coffee, tea, milk or soft drinks.

My daughter says drinking water after a meal is the same as drinking tea or coffee, "after all, they are only colored water," until, of course, milk and sugar are added.

My husband says the water washes away the digestive juices.

DEAR READER — A glass of water after a meal is fine. It also helps to give a person a satisfied feeling without gorging on calorie-rich foods that lead to obesity.

Aside from the calories present in any sugar and cream added to tea or coffee and the calories in soft drinks, they are a great deal more than colored water.

Coffee, tea, and the cola drinks all contain caffeine and that is a drug. Coffee is nothing more than a liquid "go pill." These drinks can be both helpful and harmful, more often the latter. They have the opposite effects of tranquilizers, adding to nervousness and, among other things, stimulate the stomach to produce excess amounts of acid digestive juices. Caffeine can contribute to irregularities of the heart.

You may be interested in a recent study at the National Naval Medical Center in Maryland, in which President Ford's doctor, William Lukash, participated. The investigators reported that just five cups of coffee a day caused increases in fat in the blood and raised the blood sugar, and could lead to damage of the nervous system. The investigation team recommended not drinking more than one cup of coffee at a time.

Many individuals with digestive problems become symptom-free after stopping coffee, tea and colas. If you are nervous or tense you certainly don't need to complicate the problem with these drinks.

On the positive side, coffee in small amounts increases alertness and may even improve typing skill and accuracy.

We Americans not only use the most oil in the world, but we use over half of all the coffee produced in the world. Our consumption has increased with the increase of heart attacks. The evidence of direct correlation of coffee to heart attacks is rather meager, but the indirect effects that may lead to heart difficulties are soundly based. There is general agreement that patients with irregularities of the heart and digestive disorders should avoid caffeine-containing drinks.

For more information on coffee, tea, cola and cocoa, you might wish to write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y., and ask for The Health Letter on coffee (number 1-1). Send 50 cents and a long, self-addressed envelope.

A. From $15,500 to $35,000. Depends on seniority.

Q. "HOW MUCH do a jockey's racing clothes, including his boots weigh?"

A. Seldom more than 30 ounces.

It is not unusual, however, for a woman to get dressed more quickly than a man in the morning, particularly if she makes breakfast. Contrary to the popular notion, working women tend to be speedier than men in leaving the house to go to the job.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING
ZONING CASE NO. 6067-(1)

PROPOSED CHANGE OF OFFICIAL ZONING PLAN OF THE SAN JOSE ZONED DISTRICT NO. 21, AMENDING SECTION 552 OF ZONING ORDINANCE NO. 1494, COUNTY OF LOS ANGELES, STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

Notice is hereby given that a public hearing will be held by the Board of Supervisors on the matter of proposed changes of zone. Said hearing will be held on May 28, 1975 at 9:30 a.m. in the Hearing Room of the Board of Supervisors, Room 381, Hall of Administration, 500 West Temple Street (corner of Temple Street and Grand Avenue), Los Angeles, California 90012, at which time proponents and opponents of the proposed changes will be heard before the Board of Supervisors. The affected properties are within the area described as follows:

For the larger 8 acre parcel:
From the Missionary Ridge Street cul-de-sac directly west 1,000 feet, thence south for 1,000 feet, thence west for 1,000 feet, thence north 1,000 feet to the point of beginning.

For the smaller 5 acre parcel:
From the Missionary Ridge Street cul-de-sac directly west 1,000 feet, thence south for 1,000 feet, thence west for 1,000 feet, thence north 1,000 to the point of beginning.

The Regional Planning Commission, County of Los Angeles, has adopted a resolution recommending:

1. Change of zone from RPD-10,000-6U (Residential Planned Development — 10,000 square foot required area — 6 units per acre) and R-1-20,000 (Single Family Residence — 20,000 square foot required area) to CPD (Commercial Planned Development), and from CPD (Commercial Planned Development) to RPD-10,000-6U (Residential Planned Development — 10,000 square foot required area — 6 units per acre) for the properties shown on Study "A" dated February 26, 1975 on file with this case in the office of the Department of Regional Planning;

2. That the Board of Supervisors approve the Exemption Declaration and find that there will be no significant effect on the environment;

3. That the Board of Supervisors find the recommended zoning is consistent with the goals, policies, and programs of the Los Angeles County General Plan; and

4. That the Board of Supervisors hold a public hearing to consider the above recommended change of zone.

By order of the Board of Supervisors, County of Los Angeles, State of California, adopted April 29, 1975.

Don't miss extra chance

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Hard Luck Joe won the club lead and led the suit right back. When East discarded a spade Joe remarked, "Nothing breaks for me." Then he cashed his ace and king of trumps and led his seven of hearts to dummy's queen. East won with the king and led the suit back. Joe could do nothing better than finesse his 10, lose the second heart trick and score 100 points for his opponents.

Joe had been unlucky. If both opponents had followed to the second club he would have set up enough clubs in dummy for heart discards and made seven. Also if West had held the king of hearts or East the jack, Joe would have lost just one heart trick. But poor Joe had overlooked one slight extra chance.

After East had discarded on the second club, Joe should have led his nine of trumps to dummy's jack. West would have played his singleton 10 and Joe would have had an extra entry to dummy which would have been all he needed.

Just watch the play. A third club ruffed high. The six trumps led and overtaken by dummy's seven. A fourth club ruffed high. A spade dummy's ace. A fifth club ruffed. The queen of spades led and ruffed by dummy's deuce of trumps. The sixth club would now be good and furnish a parking place for one tow heart.

One year ago: William Simon was confirmed by the Senate as Treasury secretary, succeeding George Shultz.

Today's birthdays. Queen Juliana of the Netherlands is 66. Conductor Robert Shaw is 59.

Thought for today: Love is like a mushroom. You never know whether it's the real thing until it's too late — Anonymous.

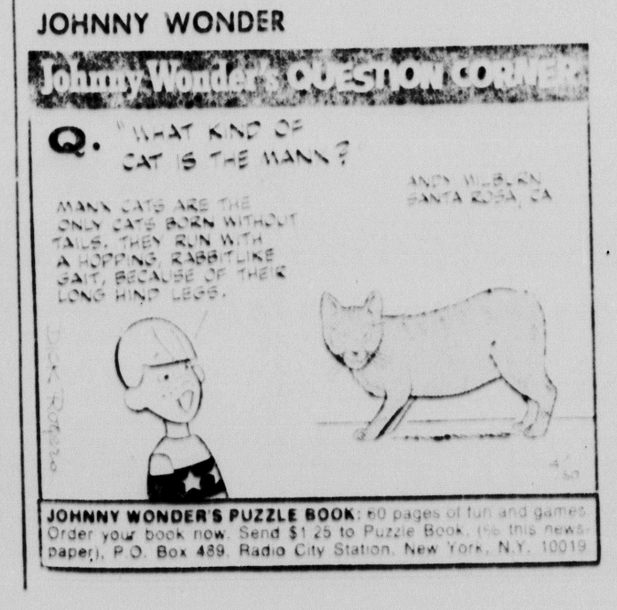
JOHNNY WONDER



Did you ever see a cat that had no tail and ran with a sort of rabbity hop? Such a cat is the Manx.

The Manx cat is very unusual as it is the only cat born without a tail.

Its hind legs are longer than the front ones, giving it a hopping gait when running. A Manx can run faster than most other kinds of cats.

The ancestors of the Manx cat came from the Isle of Man, a British island in the Irish Sea between England and Ireland.

Legend tells that the first cats on the Isle of Man swam ashore from sinking Spanish ships some 400 years ago.

There are many stories to account for how they got to be tailless. One says that these cats loitered on the way into the Ark and Noah, slammed the door on their tails.

Another says that a Manx is the result of a rabbit mating with a cat.

The truth probably is that these cats lost their tails as a result of a quirk of nature.

Damien drops first in SAL to Montclair

By GRAHAM CROW
P-B Correspondent

Weather wise, Tuesday was a perfect day for baseball. But for the Damien High Spartans the conditions for playing were about as tough as possible.

Visiting Montclair handed Matt Kolodge's team its first San Antonio League loss of the season, 10-4, and remained mathematically alive to share the SAL crown with the Spartans.

Damien sports a 10-1 record while Montclair and suddenly surprising Claremont have 7-4 marks. Each team has three games remaining.

The game marked the SAL debut of junior Todd Bell on the mound for Damien although it wasn't under the most pleasant of circumstances.

Bell was taking over for Vince Garcia, the senior righthander who was killed early Saturday morning in an automobile accident.

There had been some talk about not playing the game against Montclair but the team got together on Monday and decided to carry on.

While the Spartans weren't totally in the game mentally, as evidenced by several unnatural mistakes, it would have been tough to beat Montclair as the Cavaliers were swinging big bats all day long.

Bell was greeted roughly in the first inning when singles by Greg Walton, winning pitcher Brent Jetton and Rick Adams produced a run. Mark Lopez saved Damien momentarily with a brilliant throw from right that cut down Jetton at third.

Tom McFadden's Cavs didn't let up and rocked Bell for a pair of runs in the second and then blew the game open with five big ones in the fourth.

Damien ace Frank Pastore relieved in the top of the fifth after Bell had thrown 95 pitches. Montclair was able to pad is lead even then on a disputed double by Dave Urquidi and two wild pitches.

Montclair collected 11 hits during the afternoon with Mike Medeiros, Walton, Urquidi and Ron Candelaria each having a pair. Urquidi and Adams also had two RBI's.

Although the game was obviously a tough one for Damien to concentrate on, Kolodge was still pleased with his team's performance.

"We made a couple of mistakes out there," the Damien coach said, "but overall things went all right. Todd threw fairly well considering he hasn't seen any action since the Pomona Elks Tourney and is trying to replace a kid who was 8-1."

OUT IN FRONT

Pomona High's Dwayne Jackson (left), who holds the third best time in the state in the 330 low hurdles, clears the last hurdle ahead of Ganesha's Lloyd Jones and Pomona's Ernest Jarnigan in winning the lows during the Pomona-Ganesha track meet Tuesday. Jackson won the event in 38.4 seconds and Pomona won the meet, 86-32, to win the San Antonio League title. (See story, Page 21).

Angels' Ramirez way up in clouds

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Orlando Ramirez was way up in the clouds Tuesday night.

This shortstop from the wilds of Columbia is just a rookie with the California Angels. He can't speak a word of English but he knows what to do with a baseball.

Ramirez got four hits, including a double, in five times at bat in the Angels' 12-1 romp over the Kansas City Royals. He drove in two runs, scored twice, stole a base and had a hand in three double plays.

"I wanted five for five," said Ramirez through an interpreter, teammate Winston Llenas. "We had a league in Columbia back in 1956. My father —his name, Miguel — was the third baseman, and Brooks Robinson played shortstop. My father, went five-for-five in a game.

"My father taught me to play baseball. He taught me how to play, how to slide, how to throw, how to catch. Did I ever have four hits before I never had three."

Ramirez, 24, fouled out his last time at bat. He came up to the Angels from the minors late last year.

"I felt out of place when the Angels brought me up," said Ramirez. "Now I feel relaxed. Oh, boy, do I feel relaxed. I know I can play baseball, and I know I can help this club."

Ramirez is one of California Manager Dick Williams' rabbits, who burned up the base paths during a nine-run explosion against the Royals' Paul Splittorff, 1-3, and reliever Lindy McDaniel.

"We had our rabbits on those bases," grinned Williams. "Speed helped us get three runs on Tommy Harper's double in that big third inning.

"I'd have loved to have seen Ramirez get the fifth one. He's a big key to our ball club. He has outstanding lateral movement. If the other team hits the ball on the ground, we've got a good chance to get 'em out with Ramirez and our second baseman, Jerry Remy."

Harper's bases-loaded double was the big blow in the Angels' outburst and drove in Ramirez, Morris Nettles and Mickey Rivers. Moments later, Remy tripled, scoring Dave Chalk and Bill Sudakis. Ramirez got his double in the seventh when the Angels added three runs.

Andy Hassler, 3-1, yielded eight hits and went all the way. He lost the shutout on consecutive singles by Cookie Rojas, Jim Wohlford and Buck Martinez.

Williams, aglow over Ramirez and the Angels' success, predicted California has "as good a chance as anybody" to win the American League West Division pennant.

"Oakland won it with 90 winds last year," concluded Williams. "It might not take that many this year. "We're thinking about 88. By the way, what's Ramirez hitting anyway?"

Williams smiled at the answer ...

Dodgers building West lead

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — Andy Messersmith can do it all.

Besides being one of baseball's top pitchers, Messersmith has proven he is a complete athlete with the way he swings a bat.

However, there is more than one hero a night these days for the Los Angeles Dodgers, who are opening up a lead in the National League West despite having several players out of the lineup with various injuries.

Messersmith pitched a neat seven-hit shutout and drove in a pair of runs with two singles to lead the Dodgers to an easy 8-0 win over the Atlanta Braves Tuesday night.

The win gave the streaking Dodgers six wins in a tow as the defending National League champions have built up a 2½-game lead in the West standings.

"You can't ask anyone to do much more than what Messersmith did tonight," remarked an impressed Dodger Manager Walt Alston after the win.

Messersmith was in solid command on the mound as he extended his personal winning streak to four this season and eight over two seasons. He struck out seven Braves and walked none."

"I felt good tonight," Messersmith said, "and I feel this game makes up for the poor job I did in San Francisco."

However, Messersmith still beat the Giants, 6-5, on Friday night thanks to his three doubles.

Messersmith hit singles in the second and fourth innings to drive in the first two runs.

Willie Crawford made it 4-0 in the fifth when he hit his second home run of the season after Steve Garvey singled.

Garvey, who leads baseball with 37 hits, climaxed the big night by ripping a three-run homer in the sixth for his first round tripper of the season.

Lee Lacy was another hero. Given a chance to play because of all the injuries, Lacy continued his hot hitting Tuesday with two doubles and a single.

"You have to like this team," Messersmith said. "Guys like Lee Lacy and Rick Auerbach come in and do such a great job."

"I'm just trying to all I can to contribute," added Lacy, who is now hitting .406. "We've got 25 valuable ball players on this team."

Atlanta didn't give Messersmith much of a fight Tuesday as the righthander from Anaheim recorded his 18th lifetime shutout. The Braves only advanced runners as far as second base four times.

Meanwhile, the Dodgers drove Capra out early with the four earned runs in 4 1-3 innings.

His reliever, Max Leon, also allowed four runs but they were all unearned in the sixth thanks to first baseman Earl Williams' error when he caused catcher Johany Oates to drop Lacy's foul pop fly by crashing into him.

The play resulted after Auerbach walked and Messersmith put down a perfect sacrifice bunt.

Lopes followed with a single and Lacy took advantage of Williams' error by driving in Auerbach with a clean hit. Garvey then hit his three-run shot to wrap it up.

DODGER DATA — Undefeated Carl Morton (5-0), the National League's top winner, will pitch for the Braves tonight (7:30) in the series finale against the Dodgers' Doug Rau (2-1).

After an off-night Thursday, the Dodgers return to action Friday night by hosting the San Diego Padres on Ball Night. Free baseballs will be distributed to all youngsters 14 and under. Steve Brener, 24, was promoted by the Dodgers to the position of director of publicity. The Cal State Northridge graduate has been working in the publicity office since 1970.

Manny Mota is two pinch hits away from tying Elmer Valo for the sixth spot on the all-time list. Mota has 88 in his career and 45 for the Dodgers.

Bill Russell's cast comes off Friday from his left hand and Bill Buckner's ankle cast comes off Sunday.

Bonita loses then wins

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Correspondent

Bonita High won one and lost one Tuesday afternoon in Hacienda League baseball action.

The Bearcats scored eight runs in the first inning en route to an 11-2 rout of Ontario, only hours after Bonita officials had been notified that H.L. officials had reversed a 21-3 early season decision over San Dimas.

The ruling made Bonita's win over Ontario more important than the players realized because they didn't find out about the league ruling until after the game. Technically the Bearcats entered the game tied with Walnut for the league lead at 8-3.

School officials were notified of the decision Tuesday morning according to H.L. President Jim Graham.

"The decision refers to one of the earlier games of the year. A violation of league rules," said Graham.

"Bonita High took batting practice on the day of the game (against San Dimas, a game won by Bonita 21-3 on Mar. 18) which is a violation of Hacienda League rules. (No team shall take batting practice on the day of a game). And in all fairness, Bonita admitted their own mistakes.

"A decision was made by the H.L. board of officers upon hearing the facts and following a two-hour discussion," concluded Graham. 'So now Bonita's record is 9-3 and Gladstone, Royal Oak and Walnut are 8-4. Alta Loma is 7-5. (Walnut lost to R.O. 7-0 and Gladstone beat A.L. 12-9)."

Had the league not enforced violation and reversed the decision, Bonita's win over the Jaguars would have clinched a tie for the H.L. crown.

The Bearcats sent 12 men to the plate in the first inning as eight of the first nine batters collected hits with Bruce Hines (the only non-hit) contributing a scoring fly.

Sophomore sensation Ron Pickinpaugh started the run producing assault with a two-run single. Starting and winning pitcher Bill Bumstead (7-4) singled home a run and catcher Scott Johnson drove in a run with the first of four hits.

Larry Franco added an RBI single, Hines flew out and Matt Covington doubled, his first of two hits home the seventh run of the inning. Harold Drake then reached third on a three-base throwing error by losing pitcher Mike Breslin that allowed Covington to score.

Ontario scored its first run in the third on a single and two errors (off Bumstead) and added a second run in the sixth on singles by Larry Salazar, Ron Bornholdt, and Fred Vigil (off reliever Brad Snedeker, who went the final three innings).

Bumstead walked in the sixth and scored on Johnson's triple. The catcher scored on the hit as a relay throw was dropped.

Bonita's final run was a sixth inning sacrifice fly off the bat of Larry Franco following singles by Steve Benott (his first hit of the year) and Johnson.

Leagues interested in obtaining the forms are invited to pick them up at the Progress-Bulletin offices on the second floor.

The deadline for submitting the weekly reports will be 1 p.m. on Tuesdays. Leagues are also asked to send or submit their schedules.

MSAC gains first place on wild day

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

Mt. San Antonio College gained a share of first place in the South Coast Conference baseball race Tuesday afternoon by scoring three runs in the bottom of the ninth to beat Santa Ana, 4-3.

MSAC's victory combined with Cerritos' 7-6 loss to Fullerton knotted the standings with the Mounties and the Falcons sharing the lead. Both have four games remaining on the schedule.

Coach Art Mazmanian and his team were counting on playing only three more contests but Santa Ana Coach Jim Reach had other plans.

Reach filed a protest with conference officials over an umpire's removal of a pitcher in a 3-0 loss to the Mounties on April 14. Conference Commissioner Don Hall upheld the protest and the contest will be played from the seventh inning, Thursday, May 8 at MSAC.

Mazmanian was more than a little displeased over the commissioner's decision to honor the protest. By coincidence Commissioner Hall is also Athletic Director Hall of Cerritos.

The fiery Mountie coach had some deleted expletives for Hall and Reach but the Mounties will replay the game. They have no choice.

Strong feelings were in evidence in the ninth inning Tuesday as Mazmanian and Reach exchanged words near the pitchers mound and both benches emptied onto the field.

Order was restored quickly however and Mazmanian and Reach shook hands after relief pitcher Bill Franco walked Gary Adair with the bases full to push Mike Parkinson across with the winning tally.

The Mounties trailed 3-1 going into the ninth. With one out relief pitcher Jim Reader gave up back-to-back singles to Tracy Cowger and Ron Roenicke and sent Parkinson to first on a walk.

Exit righthander Reader for lefthander Franco to pitch to MSAC pinch hitter Dan Gans who is a switch-hitter.

Gans, who was hitting only .235 for the season, rapped a sharp line drive to right field to send Cowger and Roenicke home with the tying runs and Parkinson to third.

Franco then issued a walk to Javier Fierro, struck out winning pitcher Terry Jacob and finally ended the suspense with the walk that pushed Parkinson home.

Smartis has task of getting OMS on feet

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer
(Second in a series)

The hand lettered sign tacked on the Ontario Motor Speedway office reads, "Office on 2nd floor." The only furnishings are a couple of small metal tables in the northeast corner of the room and a few chairs.

The empty bar stands conspicuously at the left. This now is the nerve center of the $25 million facility once envisioned as the Indianapolis of the west.

The receptionist secretary is also the general manager's wife. He occupies the adjacent suite and his "office" has a desk.

The last operator, OMSOC (for Ontario Motor Speedway Operating Co.) owned the desks, files, etc., and removed everything when it abandoned the facility March 31. (It also took the telephone number, but the track got that back.)

Frugality is the keyword now. Twice the dream of making a success of the big white elephant have been shattered. Ray Smartis is the man trying to put it back together again.

A one-time drag race driver, builder, promoter, the 50-year-old Smartis first joined the OMS project in 1962 for Stolte Inc. of Oakland.

In 1968, he was appointed the project manager by the first operating company, Ontario Motor Speedway Inc. He was eventually promoted to vice president in charge of operations, then executive vice president and general manager. He left in 1971 and returned in 1973 under the second operating company (OMSOC) as plant operations manager.

And now he has returned again, as the one single man in charge of the whole ball of wax, hopefully to get OMS operating successfully, something no one else has been able to do.

What went wrong?

"When this facility was in the planning stages," Smartis began in his low key, deliberate voice, "there was a plan for how this place should be operated.

"But as it began to take shape so that you could see what it was going to be like and that it was going to be a beautiful facility, I think that first group just became overwhelmed by the magnificence of the place and they thought everybody would flock to it just because it was here.

"A lot of money (over a million dollars in advertising alone) was spent and a lot of people, about 146,000 or 147,000 paid, came to see the race.

"We who had been here from the beginning knew it would draw if promoted properly and we also expected the second year to fall off.

"But the first company developed the philosophy that they had a gold mine and all of the races for the next year or two were scheduled with the same kind of expenditures and advertising.

"The company was overstaffed, terribly, at the top. There were a lot more Indians than chiefs and they were getting fantastic salaries.

"There was a movie made that never got out of the can on which they spent $250,000 or $400,000. Frankly it was terrible. But they thought they were going to sell it for a hell of a lot of money. But they never did. And eventually they began to wake up to the fact that a hell of a lot of money had gone out and there really wasn't that much coming in.

"In April of 1971, the president was asked to resign and a troika of three men (I was one) took over.

"I took a million dollars out of the overhead. John Cooper came in as president in 1972 and knocked another six to seven hundred thousand off.

"So by the time the first operating company was about to go under, it had ground this thing down to where they had a good operational base. They had gone through a hell of a lot of money, but they were willing to stay here on some kind of new arrangement. They made an offer, but it was rejected by the bond underwriter, John Nuveen Co.

"After five months, OMSOC came along and offered considerably less than OMS Inc. But by that time it had become obvious that you aren't going to pick an operator out of the air and OMSOC's offer was accepted.

"I believe that if the first operator, OMS Inc., had stayed and operated under the terms OMSCO received, it would have netted seven or eight hundred thousand dollars itself and possibly would have paid as much as a million dollars to the bondholders."

Smartis had left the first operator late in 1971. He was one of the first persons hired by OMSOC when it took over in April of 1973.

"In some respects, OMSOC went in exactly the opposite direction," Smartis said. "They were so tight fisted that the advertising and promotions were weak.

"But they were also going through the learning process that the old company had of how to maintain and operate this facility economically.

"Unfortunately, it became obvious in about two months that they firmly believed the old company had gone broke, the old company had done everything wrong and they weren't going to listen to any of us who had been with the old company.

"They had hired about five or six key people that had been here before. We made recommendations but most of them were ignored. So they made all kinds of mistakes."

"I had told them I'd come in for a year," Smartis continued.

I was here from April of 1973 to March of 1974. In Dec. of 1973 I wrote a memo to Dudley Gray (the general partner who had asked me to come in in the first place).

"I told them there was no question in my mind that unless major changes are made, they were going to go under the same as the first operating company had. And if there weren't major changes, I was going to leave.

"I've since found out that a number of changes were attempted but couldn't be accomplished because of internal reasons. I subsequently left.

"There was no question in my mind that they'd be lucky to last another year. I think there has to be a learning period for operators who come in here. They weren't really willing to take the good from the previous operator and build from that and so they, too, failed."

Media is longshot in Derby figuring

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Media might be lost in the shuffle of newsmen concentrating on top Kentucky Derby contenders such as Foolish Pleasure, but trainer Johnny Campo thinks the lightly raced colt will be right in the thick of things during the running of the classic Saturday.

"This is a good horse, believe me," Campo said Tuesday of the Max Gluck-owned colt who has raced only four times in his life. "He'll make a good account of himself."

Media, who was unraced as a 2-year-old when he bucked his shins, won his first start March 11 and followed that with a victory in a seven-furlong allowance test 10 days later. He then finished fifth in a division of the one-mile Gotham and was a good second in the April 19 Wood Memorial, beaten by only a length by winner Foolish Pleasure.

"He should have won the Wood and the Gotham," said Campo who criticized jockey Jean Cruguet after both of those races. Cruguet also criticized Campo's conditioning of the colt following the Wood. But the French rider is scheduled to ride Media in the Derby.

"They want him," said Campo, intimating that Cruguet is Gluck's choice.

Everything appeared to be going smoothly in the camp of Foolish Pleasure, who as the Derby favorite draws the biggest crowds of reporters and onlookers.

"With a record like his, people just naturally are going to talk about him," said Leroy Jolley who trains Foolish Pleasure for John L. Greer.

Foolish Pleasure won all seven of his races in 1974 when he became 2-year-old champion and won his first two races this year. The Flamingo winner then finished third in the Florida Derby before bouncing back to win the Wood when he caught Bombay Duck in the final strides.

Mounties rally to win

Cowger with three hits, Fierro with two and Marty Shepherd with two including a run-scoring triple in the fourth, led MSAC's hit-parade. Cowger was batting .406 in conference games and .381 for the season. Fierro is hitting .356 and Gans .300 in conference play.

MSAC starter Bobby Chaulk, a Ganesha High product, missed picking up his sixth win in seven outings when he was relieved by Jacob in the sixth. Jacob's record is now 8-1.

Freshman righthander Larry Pekarcik who is 6-3 with 87 strike outs this season will be on the mound when the Mounties continue the campaign by visiting Orange Coast Thursday at 2:30 p.m. Jacob or lefthander Jim Vallone (5-2) will oppose Orange Coast on the MSAC field Saturday at noon.

Next week, the Mounties host Mesa Tuesday and Santa Ana Thursday.

Stags, Leos, Tigers win

The three leaders in the Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (SCIAC) each won their baseball games Tuesday. Cal Poly took a non conference game from San Diego St. and Azusa Pacific blasted USIU in an NAIA divisional game.

Claremont-Mudd (12-4) squeezed by Whittier, 8-7. La Verne (9-4) edged Redlands, 6-5 and Occidental (9-4) walloped Pomona-Pitzer, 16-1.

John Springman's pinch-hit single in the 10th inning gave Poly a 3-2 win over San Diego St. APC scorched USIU pitching for 30 hits and 29 runs in a 29-3 trouncing.

At Whittier, Claremont-Mudd survived five errors and broke open a seesaw game with four runs in the seventh inning. The Stags led 2-0 and then trailed, 3-2, 5-3 and 6-4 going into the seventh.

Bob Turek doubled and Andy Roundtree tripled for one run. Wynn Moore walked. Jon Begerow singled to score Roundtree. Greg Thompson sacrificed the runners to second and third. Steve Lopez walked to load the bases and Jaime Opatrny singled in Moore. A bases-loaded walk to Brad Koppel by reliever Jim Danielson finished the Stags' scoring.

Whittier came back with one run in the seventh inning. In the eighth Wayne Manzo doubled. Rick Vartanian singled but good throws by Koppel to Roundtree to Thompson cut the tying run down at the plate.

At Redlands, La Verne gave Dan Quisenberry 4-0 and 5-1 leads. The Bulldogs came back for a run in the third and then scored four times in the seventh on five hits and two errors to tie the score, 5-5.

In the Leo eighth two out singles by Art Sanchez, Redfern and Eric Frazier gave the Leopards the winning run.

Catcher Jim Sherman led La Verne's early charge. The stocky catcher had doubles in each of the first two innings. In the first inning he doubled and scored on Paul Fleming's triple. Fleming scored on Nick Leyva's sacrifice fly.

In the second, Sanchez and Redfern singled and advanced on Frazier's sacrifice. Paul Proulx grounded to third and Sanchez was nipped at the plate. But Sherman doubled to score two runs.

At Occidental, the Tigers raked Pomona-Pitzer for nine runs in the first two innings. Oxy scored four times in the first inning on four hits including a two-run homer by Raul Grijalva and Miguel Mejia's double.

The Tigers added five more in the second on four hits including a three-run homer by Mejias.

The Sagehens got their only run in the sixth inning. With two out, Chris Dialynas singled, stole second and took third on the catcher's wild throw. Biff Sherman drove him in with a single to left. Dialynas led the 'Hens with two hits in two at bats.

Cal Poly used no less than six pitchers in its four-hit win over the Aztecs. Vic Bernal was the last and best. Bernal (3-0) hurled three perfect innings striking out three in annexing the win.

Pete Alexander and Jery Pitts drew walks to open the Poly 10th. Clay Harris bunted to pitcher Jerry Forse who threw low to first base. Harris was safe and the bases were loaded. Coach John Scolinos sent John Springman in to pinch hit. With the infield drawn in, Springman grounded a single through to score Alexander with the winning run.

The Broncos, 11-22, were to play at Chapman at 2:30 p.m. today.

Azusa Pacific scored in every inning of its one-sided win over USIU. The Cougars jumped on the Westerners for nine runs in the first inning on seven hits. Paul Moskau and Phil Aris each had a two-run homer in the inning and Mark Barrier smashed a bases-loaded triple.

The Cougars had an eight-run sixth in which Curt Mitchell and Paul Frisch cracked three-run homers.

Barrier wound up with six hits for the day. Mark Rogers had three hits including a homer. Ed Shwa had three hits including a triple. Moskau had two home runs, his 12th and 13th and now has 45 runs batted in.

APC, 8-7 in division play and 22-16 overall, was at UC Riverside today.

Devil spikers whip Ganesha

Pomona claims title

By KEVIN CLOF
P-B Staff Writer

Pomona High head track coach Gene Abernathy is talking again.

He wasn't saying much about the potential powers of the Red Devil track team all year. He justed wanted his Devils to prove it on the field.

TOP SALMARKS
Here are the top marks in the San Antonio League dual meet season so far this year:
100 — Gardner (Gan) 9.6; 220 — Law (Chi) 22.1; 440 — Law (Chi) 50.3; 880 — Sorensen (Up) 1:59.0; Mile — Trehoime (Gar) 4:30.1; Two Mile — Raza (Mont) 9:48.3; 120 HH — Jackson (Pom) 14.3; 330 LH — Jackson (Pom) 38.4; 440 Relay — Ganesha (Gardner, Bailey, Jacques, Lane) 43.6; Mile Relay — Pomona (White, Sherman, Cole, Jackson) 3:25.0; HJ — Gorsien (Tare) 6-5½; LJ — Cole (Pom) 23-2; PV — Huggans (Mont) Juell (Up), Emilio (Up) 13-6; SP — Zibell (Pom) 59-6½.

Well, they proved it Tuesday afternoon. And they did it very convincingly. So now Abernathy isn't hiding his expectations of his club.

Sweeping in five events, Pomona (6-0) completely dismantled defending league champion Ganesha, 86-32.

With the victory, the Devils clinched the San Antonio League track championship for 1975. And thanks to Claremont's upset win over Chino Tuesday, the Devils can claim sole possession of the title.

"I figured we would win," Abernathy boasted. "I had it figured several different ways. One way had us winning by a 89-31 margin, so I wasn't far off. Another way only had us winning by four points."

Ganesha head coach Doug Westlake also figured the Devils would have the upper had. "I felt that if we could come up with some good performances we could win a close meet. But if we didn't, I felt Pomona would win it easily."

Ganesha didn't and Pomona DID win it easily.

Hurdlers Dwayne Jackson and Ernest Jarnigan got the Devils going by placng first and second in the 330 lows ahead of Ganesha's Lloyd Jones. Jackson, who will be honored at a Thursday track luncheon as the Valley High School Track Athlete of the Week for his performance at the Mt. San Antonio Relays, won the event in 38.4 seconds. Ganesha (4-2) then won an exciting 440 relay battle, clocking a time of 43.6 seconds.

The Devils swept two of the next three events—the half mile and the shot put. Sandwiched in between these two sweeps was sprinter Lloyd Landry's upset win over Ganesha's Darrell Gardner in the 100, winning in 10.0 seconds.

Larry Martin's 2:02.5 win in the 880 and Hank Zibell's 58-0 triumph in the shot put led to the first two Pomona sweeps.

Red Devils distance man Barry Boettcher also led sweeps in the mile (4:36.0) and the two mile (10:05.8). The only other Pomona sweep came in the pole vault.

"The 100 was the key event in the meet," Abernathy pointed out. "They (Ganesha) were expecting to sweep that one."

About his team's chances in the CIF competition, the Pomona skipper noted, "If Jackson comes through, that would be 10 points. If Zibell comes through, that would be another five points. If our mile relay team comes through, that would give us a total of 20 points. And then if our long jumpers perform like they're capable of performing we could have a shot at the CIF 3-A title."

Pomona wraps up SAL dual meet competition Thursday by visiting Montclair at 3:15 p.m.

Hacienda League roundup

Royal Oak's Cochran shuts out Walnut, 7-0

Royal Oak High pitcher Bob Cochran limited Walnut High to just two hits in leading the Romans to a 7-0 victory over the Mustangs Tuesday afternoon in Hacienda League baseball action.

The win put Royal Oak (8-4) in a three-way tie for second place in the Hacienda League standings, one game behind league-leading Bonita with two games remaining.

In other Hacienda League action Tuesday, San Dimas whipped Sierra Vista, 6-2, and Gladstone clubbed Alta Loma, 12-9.

Cochran, in giving up only two hits to Walnut, also struck out eight and walked two.

After scoring one run in the first inning, Royal Oak put the game out of reach with a four-run second frame.

Randy Delva tripled to get the Romans going in the second, and then Mark Dimitruck singled him home. Dimitruck stole second, and then Ken Gabriel reached base on a Walnut error before Steve Gaudesi and Dave Ochoa punched run-scoring singles. Gaudesi eventually came around on two stolen bases (third and home).

Ochoa was the big hitter for Royal Oak, going two-for-four with two runs batted in.

San Dimas, behind pitcher Paul Willman's five-hitter, capitalized on seven Sierra Vista errors to knock off the Dons. Willman also drove in two of the Saints' runs with a single.

San Dimas, collecting an extra win from Bonita's forfeit, is now 3-9 in Hacienda play.

Trailing 6-4 in the fifth inning, Alta Loma fell victim to a grand slam home run by Galdstone's Randy Mancuso. That gave the Gladiators a 11-4 margin after five innings of play.

Alta Loma rallied for five runs in the sixth, but it wasn't enough.

All-Weather 78

Goodyear's new All-Weather 78 is built with polyester cord that's first tempered in an exclusive Goodyear process to set the cord at optimum strength and resilience. The wide 78-series tread is "reverse molded," a technique borrowed from race tire production. In reverse molding, the contour of the tread surface is slightly concave as it comes from the mold — so that when the tire is inflated, the tread makes full, flat contact with the road. And the rib-type tread design is well grooved, with plenty of traction edges to provide decisive grip. In every detail, this new All-Weather 78 gives you honest quality, at a price that's in step with the time.

Sabres enjoy 2-0 lead on Montreal

BUFFALO (AP) — The flu bug felled Rene Robert, a knee injury put Rick Dudley out of action, but the Buffalo Sabres still had the checking line of Don Luce, Craig Ramsay and Danny Gare.

Those checkers each scored a goal Tuesday night, as did Jim Lorentz, and the Sabres skated to a 4-2 victory over the Montreal Canadiens.

The triumph gave Buffalo a 2-0 lead in the teams' best-of-seven National Hockey League semifinal playoff.

Luce began Buffalo's scoring spree with a goal at 17:20 of the first period and Lorentz made it 2-0 with a score at 9:53 of the second period.

Then it was Ramsay's turn. He followed up Gare's shot with a rebound at 1:27 of the third period and provided the Sabres with the game-winning score.

Gare's shot into an empty net from just outside the Montreal blue line with 16 seconds remaining in the game was the clincher.

Ramsay said his goal redeemed him for allowing the Canadiens to score two goals in their 6-5 overtime loss to Buffalo Sunday. In a post-game dressing room interview Tuesday night, he did not mention that he set up Gare for the goal that gave the Sabres the Sunday victory.

"Things went a little better tonight," was the key phrase in Ramsay's comment.

"They played it tight tonight," he said, when asked to compare the second playoff game with the first. "When it's wide open it's good for our other two lines, but not for our line. Tonight was a little more our style."

The Luce-Ramsay-Gare line kept the Canadiens pretty much under control, especially in the closing minutes when the game turned into a slam-bang affair.

In addition, Buffalo goalie Gerry Desjardins was missing because of a right knee injury.

In his stead, veteran Roger Crozier, who took over the net in the first minute of play Sunday, held off the Canadiens, making 25 saves.

"We know we're a hockey club with depth, we played all year with players out," Luce said. "You think about the guys that are missing and you don't want them to be behind the eight-ball when they come back. You want to make sure they don't come back uptight. Some night they're going to do the same for you."

The Canadiens, who did not get a shot on goal until 12:10 of play, finally scored in the second period as Yvon Lambert tipped in a shot at 11:22. Henri Richard also tallied for Montreal, at the nine-minute mark of the third period.

Richard's goal was his 127th in Stanley Cup play, one goal more than his brother Maurice "Rocket" Richard, the Canadiens' star player in the 1940s and 1950s.

Stephenson leads Flyers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Wayne Stephenson played the hero's role in a hockey fairy tale about the champion's star goalie getting injured at the last minute and the substitute stepping in and scoring a shutout in the big game.

The only thing is that it wasn't one of those fiction stories, but the real thing. Stephenson was watching Bernie Parent, the Philadelphia Flyers great goalie, warm up before Tuesday night's first game in a best-of-seven National Hockey League playoff.

Suddenly, Parent was sprawled on the ice. A practice shot by teammate Gary Dornhoefer caught Parent on the inside of his right knee. He had to be helped off the ice and finally was sent to a nearby hospital for x-rays. He could hardly walk, let alone play.

Parent was seen leaving the Spectrum after the game, his leg in a cast from mid-thigh to mid-calf. He said the injury was a bleeding tendon and he was very doubtful about playing Thursday.

Enter our hero, the 30-year-old Stephenson, who once turned his back on hockey because they wouldn't play him enough. He returned at the age of 27, and is in his third full year in the NHL. All Stephenson did was blank the Islanders in a 4-0 Flyers' victory.

"I was a little shaky in the first period," Stephenson recalled after turning back 21 Islanders' shots. "I had to stop that first shot. If I missed it I might have been in trouble."

He didn't miss it, and he didn't miss any of the New York shots that followed. He stood in there behind that big, quick, tenacious Philadelphia defense and played like...well, like Bernie Parent.

"I wasn't really satisfied with my total performance," said Stephenson as his mates and Coach Fred Shero heaped praise on his effort. "I did some things I'll have to work on."

He'll work on them in practice today, because despite optimism from the Flyers' brass, the Parent who hobbled away on crutches, didn't look like he would be playing much hockey for awhile.

Stephenson wasn't exactly caught unprepared for his great relief job. Parent had been suffering from a pinched nerve in his neck and there had been some doubt that he would start even before the injury.

"I've been ready for this for two days," said Stephenson, who played in 10 games with the Flyers this season and posted a 7-2-1 record and 2.72 goals against average. "I've been working for it. It was just a matter of getting mentally prepared."

Stephenson recalled his reaction when he saw Parent go down. "My first thought was 'Bernie, get up.'"

Stephenson said that when he realized that he was going to play, his main concern was letting the team know he was all right.

"I had to build up their confidence in me," he said.

Shero said he was never worried.

"I had no concern at all," the coach said. "Wayne is a very capable goalie. After all, he beat out Ken Dryden (Montreal goalie) for a Canadian national team, so he must be pretty good."

Shrine North coaches named

LOS ANGELES — Arnold Leckman of Cleveland High in Reseda and Joe Zeno, Jr. of Paso Robles High have been named as co-coaches for the North team in the 24th annual Shrine All-Star Football Classic.

The contest will be played Saturday night, July 26, in the Rose Bowl.

Narbonne's Jack Bobinette and Dick Hill of Santa Ana Valley earlier were named as co-coaches for the South team in the contest.

Both Leckman and Zeno are UCLA graduates where they played in the backfield. Both have compiled impressive coaching records.

Leckman is 50-20-3 in seven years at Cleveland. His teams won the league championship on three occasions, in 1968, 1971 and 1974. The '68 and '71 teams made it to the City semi-finals.

Grand Prix set for L.B.

LONG BEACH — The world's greatest international drivers will be racing through the streets of Long Beach in the United States Grand-Prix-West, a fully sanctioned Formula 1 road race slated for March 28, 1976.

The Grand Prix will be preceeded this year by a Sept. 28 race for Formula 5000 cars competing as part of the Sports Car Club of America national series and featuring open-cockpit, open-wheeled, single-seat machines, virtual carbon copies of the Formula 1 cars that compete on the international circit.

"This race has captured my imagination completely," said famed race driver Jackie Oliver after touring the 2.25-mile, 16-turn course that actually runs through the streets of Long Beach.

"This will be a great thing for North America," continued Oliver who plans to compete in both events. "There will be considerable analogy with Monte Carlo, but in time this race will establish its own identity."

Only the Grand Prix of Monaco, held each May in Monte Carlo, utilizes city surface streets. In addition, the United States becomes the first country to be awarded two Grand Prix events in the same year. Since 1961, the U.S. Grand Prix has been held every October at Watkins Glen, N.Y.

Although the Long Beach circuit was approved as an international circuit by the Commission Sportive Internation's safety and circuits board, Chris Pook, Long Beach businessman, who conceived the original idea and is the guiding force behind the Grand Prix event, wanted the first hand impression by a driver who had raced at all of the circuits throughout the world.

"I was elated that Jackie was so turned on by the whole thing," said Pook. "I took him to City Hall and showed all of the structural charts, elevations and designs and then we toured the course. He was really enthused,"

"I'll take my hat off to you blokes," said Oliver. "I can just imagine the blooky hurles you had to pass."

Pook, a Marketing and promotion executive, heads a group called the Long Beach Grand Prix Association and includes former Grand Prix driver and car builder Dan Gurney and Don Dyer, a Long Beach attorney. Les Richter, president of Riverside International Raceway, will serve as race director.

The Grand Prix Association West has obtained the final approval of the Federation Internationale de L'Automobile (FIA) and has the full backing of the Long Beach City Council, Chamber of Commerce, News Bureau and the Downtown Long Beach Associates.

The race course starts on Ocean Blvd., near the intersection of Long Beach Blvd., heads east along the business section, then twists and turns sweeping west past the Long Beach Arena, Rainbow Lagoon, the under-construction Convention Center and Auditorium, passes within full view of the Queen Mary, up a steep hill and back to the business section of Ocean Blvd.

It will be a challening course for the likes of last year's F-5000 champ Brian Redman, Chief rival Mario Andretti and his Viceroy Lola teammate Al Unser, two time USAC champion Bobby Unser, who will pilot a Jorgensen Eagle for Gurney, 1974 Can-Am champ Jackie Oliver, who will be making his F-5000 debut, and the other driving aces who will be testing it for the first time in competition Sept. 28.

Minibike programs to start

MOORPARK — While leading up to a national championship that will be held later this year, probably over the Labor Day weekend, an exciting series of racing programs for minibike and minicycle riders will be contested every Sunday, beginning May 4, at Valley Cycle Park in Moorpark.

Running under sanction of United States Minicycle Racing Assn., the events for the young racers will give them an opportunity to uncork a wide variety of both modified and stock lightweight machinery on a full ¾ mile circuit that formerly was used for TT competition at the off-road complex, located just a few miles west of the San Fernando Valley.

According to Dick Zahäter, manager at Valley Cycle Park, "Not only should this track produce some close and safe action for the youngsters, but, to my knowledge, it will provide them with the chance of displaying their ability on what should be the longest obstacle course currently being used in the United States on a once-a-week basis for minicycle contests.

Open to riders in all racing divisions, including Peewee and Powder Puff classes, point standings will be compiled for the entire season and will eventually lead an overall winner to an award of a new, race-prepared minicycle.

Trophies will be presented to winning riders each Sunday. While a record-setting contingency program is being planned for the National championship show later in the year.

Those interested in participating in the fun and action at Valley Cycle Park should contact United States Minicycle Racing Assn.—a subsidiary of Track Masters' Racing Assn.—at P.O.Box 615, Tujunga, Ca. 91042. Or, by phoning (213) 353-1910.

Set championship of hillclimbing

SUNNYMEAD — Motorcycle hillclimbers from across the country will converge on De Anza Cycle Park in Sunnymead, on Saturday and Sunday, May 10 & 11 for the first world championship of hillclimbing.

On Saturday stock and street bikes will try their luck on the super hill, competing for trophies, finisher pins and contingencies. The meet gets underway promptly at 9 a.m., and many of the spectators will be ready and waiting as early as the night before.

Sunday's event will be the big run for the money and begins at 8 a.m.. A purse that totals over $5000 is up for grabs. This meet will pit some of the fastest, most exotic bikes against the steep hill and the timing clocks. Top winner in each of three classes will walk away with a $1000 prize. Prize money for the second place finisher in each class will be $300, with $200 for a third, $100 for a fourth and $75 for a fifth.

Entry for the two day event will close on April 20. Cost of entry is $7 for the Saturday event, $15 for the money event on Sunday.

Bikes running in the money event on Sunday will be highly modified, many burning exotic fuel mixtures and carrying chains on the tires. The classes will include bikes from 0 — 250 cc, from 251 — 501 cc, and from 502 cc to ???

On Saturday the bikes will range from mini bikes upward. All will be burning pump gas, and although they may have lengthened swing arms and small seats, will be stock bikes.

Spectator tickets are available in advance from De Anza Cycle Park, James Mock, Inc., 1160 N. Fee Ana, Anaheim, CA (714 528-2314) or from members of the Saddleback Hillclimbers' Assoc. Tickets will also be available at the gate on the day of the event. For Sunday only, the tickets are $3.00, for both days, the ticket is $5.00.

De Anza Cycle Park is located eight miles east of Riverside Raceway on Hwy 60 to the Thedore off ramp. Follow the signs to the park.

Chaffey helps

Citrus wins title

Chaffey upset Riverside, 3-1 and Citrus edged San Bernardino, 7-6 Tuesday as the Owls clinched the championship in the Northern Division of the Mission Conference.

Coach Skip Claprood's Citrus team has a three-game lead in the standings with only two to play. The Owls are 16-4 while RCC is 13-7 and third place Chaffey is 12-8.

Citrus put San Bernardino away with a three-run seventh inning as Jim Ayres and Dave Hostetler singled and Worth Valentine's ground ball was misplayed by the shortstop, scoring Ayres.

Joe Sansom followed with a double to score Convertino and designated runner Henry Hardy.

Ayres had three hits in four trips to the plate for the Owls and Hostetler, Convertino, Sansom and Tod Ervin collected two apiece.

Rich Castilas led San Bernardino with three hits in four trips including a home run with three RBI for San Bernardino.

Relief pitcher Rich Field came on for Eric Mustad and Jim Arkison in the seventh inning to gain credit for his eighth victory in 10 starts.

Citrus advances to a Mission conference playoff with southern division champion San Diego at a date and time to be determined.

Citrus, which owns the winningest record in the state this year with a 27-7 mark, closes out the regular season by visiting Chaffey Thursday and hosting Riverside Saturday.

Chaffey scored all its runs in the second inning to knock Riverside out of the title picture.

Jesse Chavez opened the inning with a double and was moved around on Larry Jones ground out, and George Bjorkman's single.

Mike Walters followed with a single and Jay Myers' ground ball was misplayed to score another run. Dennis Hawkins' sacrifice fly drove in the final run.

Several Chino High athletes suspended on rule violations

Controversy has hit the athletic department at Chino High.

Several athletes from both the baseball and track teams have been suspended for an indefinite period of time due to disciplinary action taken by the department.

The suspensions involve several regular starters on the Cowboy baseball team and a handful of athletes off the track team, including one of the top sprinters in the state.

"This is a situation where training rules were broken," explained Chino Athletic Director Bud Carroll Tuesday night. "There was a violation of guideline rules which we have established here at Chino, and so we took action against those violations."

Carroll, however, would not discuss the violations and refused to disclose the names of the athletes involved, although some of the absences from the baseball and track teams in Tuesday's competition was obvious.

"As far as I know, the athletes involved who were competing on the varsity division for the baseball team have been suspended for the rest of the season," Carroll announced. "In track, they held a team meeting to decide on how long the suspensions will be.

"This kind of problem is probably happening at other schools, but Chino doesn't want to shove it under the rug. This thing might have been going on all year, and we finally decided we had to do something about it. We knew we had a problem and we had to decide which direction to take.

"This is just an internal problem," Carroll added. "We're trying to get a positive attitude at the school out of this thing."

Sad, cynical, skeptical

Many U.S. Vietnam vets live within bitter shell

NEWARK, Ohio (AP) — Bill Pitt watches the television reports of seemingly endless North Vietnamese advances and worries aloud what his oldest son, Bill Jr., will think of his father's war.

"Why did you go over there for those years," he expects the boy, now a third grader, to begin asking any day now. "What did we go over there for if it was to all go down the drain?"

After seven years in and out of veterans hospitals, Pitt, 32, has come to terms with the abrupt end to his eight-year career as an Army noncom and the loss of most of his right leg from wounds suffered in a North Vietnamese ambush.

But the probability that a Viet Cong flag soon will fly over Saigon makes his stomach churn.

"It tears me apart but I don't think there is anything we can do about it. I think we blew our chances," Pitt said during an interview in the living room of his house outside this midwestern city of 43,000.

Pitt's adopted city sent its sons to war willingly, believing a succession of presidents who said the South Vietnamese government had legitimate need of American military help.

The price was high: 38 GIs from Newark and surrounding towns in Licking County never came back. A street in the adjacent town of Heath was renamed for two local men who died in the early years of the war.

When 60 students from nearby Denison University marched on the courthouse to protest the war, the Newark Advocate editorialized:

"Demonstrators here and in other cities also know that America can't be extricated from (the war) by the same mournful pleadings, tantrums and cry-baby tactics these children of the mini-minority use to get a bigger allowance or a bigger car out of papa."

Observers of the April 1969 peaceful demonstration can remember no townspeople taking part. Instead, there was general agreement when the area's conservative congressman Republican John M. Ashbrook called for a military solution to the war.

Now with three-quarters of South Vietnam in Communist hands, there is bitterness among Newark's Vietnam veterans whose welcome home fell far short of the treatment given survivors of other wars.

Dennis Armstrong, wounded twice as a Marine and like Pitt, a Silver Star winner, was asked if his friends and co-workers at the Post Office respected him for fighting in Vietnam.

"They really didn't care one way or the other" Armstrong said. "I'm one of our award winners. It was really surprising to see how many people didn't really give a damn."

Armstrong, a tall, lean athletic-looking man of 25, said of his several military awards, "If you put them all on the table and put 15 cents next to them, you could buy a cup of coffee."

Like several other Newark veterans interviewed, Armstrong said once the United States decided to intervene, Hanoi should have been invaded.

What about those who fled to Canada to avoid the military draft and Vietnam?

"I can accept them now," says Armstrong. "But I have no respect for them whatsoever. I lost too many friends who had the guts to go to Vietnam."

Like Bill Pitt, Terry Blackstone is confined to a wheelchair by war wounds; his spine was crushed by an exploding enemy mortar round on a base camp near Da Nang.

The 24-year-old Blackstone owns a $26,000-a-year lawn mower sales and repair shop, although the Veterans Administration rates him 100 per cent disabled.

"Lately, there have been a lot of people saying we should go back over there, which if, by God, if they want to go back over there, give 'em a rifle and send 'em back over," said Blackstone.

He adds, "The only ones I've heard who want to go are too old to fight. Either that or they don't have any sons or grandsons.

"In seven years there, we were supposed to be training them (the South Vietnamese Army), and we did most of the fighting and it didn't help. It didn't do any good so if we go back over again and try to retrain them and try to help them, I still don't think it's going to make any difference."

Then pausing, his voice low, "We lost a lot of guys over there. I lost a lot of friends. I think it's a waste.

"I can see their point in getting the infants out," he says. Anything beyond that is pointless, including any additional military aid for the Saigon government.

Should America's political leaders be blamed in general for Vietnam and in particular for the lost use of his legs?

"I just don't know. I don't think we should have been over there in the first place, but yet I was sent over there to do a job and I went and I came back wounded and hurt ... No, I guess I can't blame anybody."

Ex-Marine machine gunnsr Robert E. Bolton, 25, another Vietnam veteran, was laid off from his job as a printer with the St. Regis Paper Co. plant in Newark last month. He does not know when or if he will be called back and is currently drawing unemployment insurance benefits to support his family.

He was asked if the United States owes anything either to the South Vietnamese who worked for the American government or to those who hold important military or civilian jobs in their own government.

"I think we should take care of the people who are here (in the United States) before we worry about other people," Bolton said. "We should look after our own people out of work."

And whether because of the war or Watergate, Bolton passes a judgment voiced by many of Newark's veterans on American politicians.

"I don't care to listen to them," he says impassively.

Fine Arts Foundation plans May luncheon

Scripps College Fine Arts Foundation will conclude the 1974-75 year with its annual May luncheon at Wilbur Hall at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Helen Watson, noted ceramicist, director of the Ceramics Division, Otis Art Institute and a graduate of Scripps and the Claremont Graduate School, will be the speaker at the meeting at 2 p.m. in the Humanities Auditorium. Mrs. Watson will discuss her work and show slides of some of her major pieces. Mrs. Watson has a one-woman show at the Invitation and Juried Groups Ceramics Shows at the Women's Building in Los Angeles.

The meeting will be followed by tea in Lang Gallery and the opening of the students art show. Each year several awards are given by the Fine Arts Foundation for the most outstanding work in the student show.

For a number of years the Fine Arts Foundation has also awarded scholarships. This year the recipients are: FAF 25th anniversary scholarships, Karen Swirsky and Allison Saar; Millard Sheets Graduate Art scholarships, Deborah Engemann and Sharen Corey; Josephine Everett scholarship, Barbara Davis; Albert Stewart scholarship, Barbara Bruner and FAF memorial scholarship, Susan Chauncy.

All FAF scholarship holders have been invited to the meeting and tea as well as the 19 Scripps seniors who are working on art projects to be exhibited in Lang Gallery, May 27-June 8. Members of the public interested in hearing Helen Watson or in meeting the seniors and scholarships recipients are welcome.

Sophisticated

Fragrance not only makes people nice to be near but has a way of lifting one's spirits, too. Having discovered this, Americans are becoming more sophisticated in their use of perfume — especially the classics from the great French houses to express characters, moods and fashions.

ART WORK — Mrs. Helen Watson, ceramicist, shows some of her work to Karen Swirsky, Fine Arts Foundation scholarship recipient. Mrs. Watson will be the speaker at Fine Arts luncheon meeting.

Nunes-Fraser vows exchanged in church

At an afternoon ceremony in San Secondo Catholic Church at Guasti marriage vows were exchanged between Miss Shirley Maria Nunes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lionel D. Nunes of Chino, and David Earl Fraser, Upland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Fraser of Michigan.

The bride chose a full-length gown of lace and satin with a long veil of lace. She carried daisies, roses and baby's breath. She was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Tina Nunes was her sister's maid of honor and bridesmaid was Mrs. Linda Nunes. Flower girl and ring bearer were Elizabeth and Eileen Nunes.

Rod Fraser was the best man and ushers were Lee Nunes and David Nunes.

MRS. RICHARD BLECKER

Blecker, Piculell rites read

The First Presbyterian Church of Pomona was the setting for the marriage of Miss Brenda Lucile Piculell and Richard Roy Blecker.

The Rev. George Wilson officiated at the double-ring ceremony which united in marriage the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Piculell of Chino and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Blecker of Pomona.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a gown of white organza and satin. The empire bodice topped an A-line skirt which flowed to a cathedral-length train. The bodice was covered with alencon lace.

The bride carried a cascade of white roses.

Mrs. Kathy Hanson was matron of honor and Miss Linda Blecker was bridesmaid.

Candlelighters were Scott Lyles and Ken Shokes. Tom Gull presented a flute solo.

Kerry Blecker was best man. Ushers were Brian Frantz, Mr. Shokes and Mr. Lyles.

A reception at the church honored the newlyweds who honeymooned in San Diego. They reside in Pomona.

The bride is a graduate of Cal Poly Pomona with a major in biology. She is employed in the cardiac research program at City of Hope.

The groom is an accounting major at Cal Poly Pomona.

BITTER BATTLE — This is artist Robert Arenivar's conception of the Battle of Puebla in 1862 between the French army and ragged Mexican troops. The Mexican victory will be celebrated at the Festival of Cinco de Mayo at the Los Angeles Music Center Sunday.

Cinco de Mayo festival slated at Music Center

Some 400 singers, actors, dancers and artists will take part in the Festival of Cinco de Mayo at the Los Angeles Music Center from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Hope Street and Grand Avenue will be closed to traffic between First and Temple streets, and 200 booths will be set up for games, food, art demonstrations and crafts sales. There will be sidewalk cafes and two outdoor stages. Strolling musicians, mimes, jugglers and clowns will entertain throughout the day.

The activities include an art exhibition for Los Angeles school children and a juried show for professional artists.

One of the outdoor stages will be set up on Grand Avenue at Temple Street with continuous entertainment appealing especially to the small children from 9 a.m. to closing.

Two performances, in Spanish, of the comedy, "El Quelite," starring Carmen Zapata, with Valentin Robles, will be performed on the outdoor Pavilion stage at 11:30 a.m. and 1:45 p.m. Carolina Russek and her Mexican-American Dance Company will be seen at 3 p.m., following official greetings set at 12:30 p.m.

County Supervisor Edmund D. Edelman, John Tunney, Lt. Gov. Mervyn M. Dymally, Mayor Tom Bradley and Councilman Gilbert W. Lindsay will officiate.

This year's special guest from Mexico City will be Miss Angela Alicia Alessio Robles, chief for the outdoor stage of director of the planning department of the Federal District of Mexico.

Nineteen giant banners with murals of the Mexican culture, will serve as the backdrop for the Pavilion. They are creation of scores of Mexican-American artists under the direction of the Goez Gallery. Chalupas (boats) will sail in the pools with floating flower blooms.

Free public parking will be provided at the various Los Angeles County lots, those of Arco Plaza's J-2 Garage, the World Trade Center, the Security Plaza and the Department of Water & Power.

Americans growing

In the last two generations, Americans have grown one-and-a-half inches, and now at an average height of 5 feet 8.2 inches, they continue to be the world's tallest people except for the Watusi and Dinkas in East Africa.

Art classes to be offered in Ontario

Artist Baila Goldenthal will offer a class in sketching and painting at Colony Park Community Center, 1240 W. Fourth St., Ontario, starting at 9 a.m. Monday.

The class is co-sponsored by Ontario Recreation Division and Chaffey College Community Education Program. The artist will hold advanced painting classes combined with a workshop every Monday for nine weeks, from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. The class size is limited. The lessons will stress composition, organization of elements, color exploration and form. At each class session the student will paint with his own medium of art. Each student is to bring his own supplies.

Anyone interested in joining the art class and workshop may sign up at the Monday class. Further information is available by calling Colony Park Community Center, 986-8014.

Roman April

April was "Aprilis" to the Romans, possibly from aperire, to open, as do buds in spring, but the derivation is as uncertain as is April weather.

Derivation of topiary

Topiary is the art of training, cutting and trimming trees and shrubs into odd and ornamental patterns. The term itself derives from the Latin "toparius," an ornamental or landscape gardener.

'Scapino'

Huntington Hartford presents dull farce

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

The Young Vic production of "Scapino," which opened Sunday at the Huntington Hartford Theater in Hollywood, is a work of art—and like many works of art, it is dull.

"Scapino" is a smooth, beautifully choreographed slapstick farce adapted from Moliere's "Les Fourberies de Scapin" by Jim Dale (who stars) and Frank Dunlop (who directs). It is an example of commedia dell' arte, and helps explain why that art form died out.

Scapino (Dale) is a rascally but lovable manservant who goes his raucous, irrepressible way solving everyone's problems, hoodwinking angry parents, bringing young lovers together and always looking out nicely for No. 1, thank you. Dale is enormously talented and outrageously charismatic and appealing, but, like the play itself, he's a little too ebullient, too sure of his own charm.

Scapino's japes get solid support from earnestly funny Gavin Reed as Sylvestro; apoplectic little Ian Trigger as Argante, and hulking, sonorous Frank Lucas as Geronte, a jowly green giant, all suspicion and volcanic trascibility. They are three consumate comedians, a delight to watch, yet as formal and stylized as a Gilbert & Sullivan chorus.

Which is the chief problem with the whole play — too slick, too carefully orchestrated, too studiously rehearsed, so that a feeling of improvisation that would have lent charm is absent.

Carl Toms' ticky-tacky set of boats, balconies and barrooms is colorful and imaginative—and in fact gives promise of casual, impromptu fun that the comdy never lives up to.

Woodwind concert set at Pomona

Five students of the Claremont Colleges will present a woodwind quintet concert in Lyman Hall, Pomona College, at 8:15 p.m. Friday. Admission is free.

Highlighting the concert will be a performance of Carl Nielsen's Quintet, Op. 43, composed in 1922. Also programmed are the Blaserquintett No. 2, by Franz Danzi, who specialized in writing music for winds; "Summer Music," composed in 1956 by Samuel Barber, and Trio in D Major for Clarinet, Horn and Bassoon, by K.H. Graun, preclassical composer.

Musicians in the quintet are Nancy Miller, horn; Valari Elardo, oboe; Catherine Hayden, flute; Jerri Taylor, bassoon, and Al Rice, clarinet.

Ancient art

Wet clay pot cooking stages a comeback

SUCCULENT ROAST DONE IN WET CLAY POT

When archaeologists unearthed the ancient cities of Etruria, one of the artifacts they uncovered was a curious and seemingly uncharacteristic kind of cooking ware.

Pots in which the ancients cooked their food, strangely enough, were roughly made of unglazed terra cotta, extremely primitive for a civilization that excelled in art and potterymaking.

Discovery of the rudely made, unglazed, terra-cotta pots would be of little more than academic value except for the fact that this ancient method of cooking recently has been revived.

Cooks of Etruria had something, we know, and it's called "wet-clay pot cooking."

Glorious, succulent dishes resulting from this ancient method of preparation are not to be believed and cannot be described adequately. What's more, no culinary skill beyond being able to follow a simple recipe is required to obtain such results.

First, however, it is important to eliminate one point of possible confusion. Wet-clay pot cooking is not the same as other kinds of clay-pot cooking.

Most clay pots are glazed on the outside, inside, or both. A wet-clay pot is made of very porous, highly fired, unglazed terra cotta. To produce its delectable results, it must be completely immersed in water for 10 or 15 minutes before being used.

Porous clay soaks up water like a sponge and "breathes." When baked at high temperatures, water turns to steam, mingles with natural juices of the pot's contents and penetrates the deepest portion of the food with a self-basting action. The results are of gourmet quality.

With this method, almost any meal can be prepared without the addition of fats, oil or water. No extra calories are added to the food, yet all nutrients and flavors are preserved.

Inexpensive, tough cuts of meat turn out as buttery tender as most choice selections with the wet-clay method.

The possibilities are endless whether you are preparing meat, fowl, fish, vegetables, soup, even bread, cake or desserts.

Unfortunately, the ancient cooks didn't leave any recipes for the modern ones, but that has now been remedied by the publication of The Clay-Pot Cookbook by Georgia M. and Grover Sales (Atheneum, New York). The book contains a wide range of mouth-watering recipes for all types of dishes, enough to keep any culinary enthusiast busy for months preparing exotic dishes without repeating.

Wet-clay pots come in a variety of sizes to accomodate different amounts of food required.

Cooking with a wet-clay pot is simple, but there are a few basic rules that must be followed. The following ten points will show you how to get great results from your wet-clay pot.

1. Always soak the pot. Submerge the top and bottom in water for 10 to 15 minutes before starting to cook. This is a must. It permits the unglazed clay to absorb moisture which will seal the pot during the baking process.

2. Always place the pot in a cold oven. Do NOT preheat the oven. The slow increase of the oven temperature is vital for the cooking method.

3. Place the pot near the center of the oven.

4. Use a very high temperature. Between 450 degrees and 480 degrees for most recipes.

5. Trim as much fat as you can before beginning to cook. Add a little liquid, preferably wine, to fatless meat to keep it from getting dry. Calorie counters need not worry because alcohol is consumed during cooking. Oil should be used sparingly.

6. Use plenty of salt; except when the recipe doesn't call for it.

7. Use a reliable oven thermometer. A meat thermometer that can fit inside the pot is desirable. Remove the pot from the oven when the thermometer is almost up to the recommended temperature.

8. About 10 minutes before the end of the cooking period, remove the pot from the oven. Pour the juices into a pan to make sauce.

9. For extra browning or crispness, remove the lid and cook in the oven for 10-15 minutes more, or place under the broiler for a few minutes.

10. Get a good pair of asbestos barbecue gloves to put on when you are handling the casserole.

Source of caviar

A 350-pound sturgeon yields 55 pounds of caviar, and a 2,680-pound fish once provided more than 350 pounds. But it takes 18 to 20 years before a Beluga sturgeon matures and spawns.

Hot weather eggs

Eggs laid in summer months were vulnerable to breaking until farmers air-conditioned henhouses; hot weather evidently discomforts the hens and causes them to lay thin-shelled eggs.

Daniel Boone . . .

with them began to break down, and new rules and customs were forged.

There was variety in this Americanization. Different settlers brought different cultures and habits and hammered them into new ways in differing circumstances across the varied geography of the new land.

But some things came out the same. The new American character was practical, direct, immediate. It was born of necessity, not theory, when the answer meant life or death and to delay was to perish.

The Spanish conquistadors had found wealth in another kind of America, where gold was for the taking and the natives docile. They failed miserably in the land that was to become the United States, except for lonely missions and defensive stations dependent on lifelines to the mother country.

The first English attempts at this rugged land also failed. Sir Walter Raleigh planted three colonies; two turned back and the third vanished. The Plymouth Company, 13 years ahead of the Pilgrims, planted a group on the Kenebec which fled back to England after an "extreme unseasonable and frosty" winter.

Later settlers learned that if they were to make it in this kind of America, they would have to become part of it. They must be self sufficient. They must wrestle a living from the land.

At first the people of English America starved in the midst of plenty. But in time they learned to cope and coping made them Americans. In 1609 John Smith told the people at Jamestown that those who didn't work wouldn't eat and began a leveling process which had Thomas Jefferson declaring in 1776 that all men are created equal.

Defense was mandatory on the frontier. Every boy over 12 shouldered a gun and did his share in feeding and protecting the settlement. There was no army for protection, so they learned to band together at a minute's notice when danger came.

They had been doing this for three centuries before Paul Revere called them out to fight the British.

With official government too far away to help, they made their own. The first legislative assembly in America met in Jamestown in 1619. The Pilgrims had their compact, and Daniel Boone had his Transylvania Convention.

Democracy was not their objective, merely organization for survival. But once they tried self government, they would not let it go.

Americans learned other things from the wilderness — self reliance, inventiveness, tolerance, a willingness to help each other when none could stand alone. They valued simple virtues and simple entertainments.

But a hard life made hard men, too. From generations of living within quick reach of musket or rifle, they were suspicious people. Having learned their own interests the hard way, they were extremely provincial. They were obsessed with land fever and harshly cruel to the Indians who stood in their way.

They raped the land, bleeding it and leaving it, ever moving, ever pushing the frontier further and further west as if there were no end — until at last it ended.

The frontier offered escape from a depressed and crowded Europe and then a crowded America. The British tried to stop it in 1763 by sealing the frontier at the Appalachian ridges, and this was one of the big reasons for the Revolution.

Joseph Warren . . .

muel Adams and John Hancock.

But Warren's spies became aware of the troop movements and he sent Revere on the ride that was to become American folklore. Revere was arrested, but other riders made it through and the rebel leaders escaped.

Warren helped organize the Indian-style fighting that helped to defeat the British at Lexington and Concord. He continued his staff work, training colonial troops and organizing the fortifications for the Battle of Bunker Hill. But when the fateful fight began on June 17, 1775, Warren refused to go with other leaders to safety out of sight of the battle. He told Col. William Prescott: "I shall take no command here. I came as a volunteer with my musket to serve under you."

When the Americans finally ran out of ammunition and Prescott ordered his men to pull back, Warren stayed behind to direct the retreat, still fighting with his rifle butt and bayonet.

At the age of 34, Joseph Warren, doctor, writer and leader, died of a bullet wound in the mud. Legend says he fell at the very spot where the Bunker Hill monument now stands.

them was irreconcilable, both sides recognized that the real matter at issue was one of principle.

"Even a 19-year-old student at King's College in New York, only lately come to America, named Alexander Hamilton, addressing a mass meeting in City Hall Park on July 6, 1774, knew that the contest was not over 'the petty duty 3 pence per pound on East India tea, (but) whether the inhabitants of Great Britain have a right to dispose of the lives and properties of the inhabitants of America.'"

Some of the paintings in the show have been lent to an American museum for the first time, such as Charles Willson Peale's portrait of George Washington which was commissioned by the Comte de Rochambeau to commemorate victory at Yorktown. It was lent by a private collection.

Queen Elizabeth lent letters of her great great-grandfather, George III, including a proclamation for suppressing rebellion and sedition, a document he intended would make his "rebellious children rue the hour they cast off obedience."

There is a letter from George III to Lord Sandwich on July 1, 1775, agreeing "that once those rebels have felt a smart blow, they will submit; and no situation can ever change my fixed resolution, either to bring the colonies to a due obedience to the legislature of the mother country or to cast them off!"

There is a handsome portrait of the English king, painted by the American Benjamin West, who worked much of the time in London, on loan from the Cleveland Museum of Art.

The French National Museum at Versailles has lent a portrait of King Louis XVI, who reigned during the period. It was painted by Antoine Francois Callet.

There is a crayon sketch of Lord North, done by the American master John Singleton Copley, on loan from the Library of the Boston Athenaeum.

There are portraits of other key personalities. On the Colonial side, there is the only known life portrait, a tiny pencil sketch by John Trumbull, of Israel Putnam, the old soldier who commanded Connecticut's forces at Bunker and Breed's Hills.

Also by Trumbull are two fighting scenes made from life sketches — "The Death of General Warren at the Battle of Bunker's Hill" and "The Death of General Montgomery in the Attack on Quebec."

There is a portrait of Thomas Paine by John Wesley Jarvis; George Washington's copy of Paine's influential political tract, "Common Sense," and Paine's writing kit.

There is George Mason's draft of the Virginia Declaration of Rights which inspired Thomas Jefferson's Declaration of Independence, represented by a contemporary engraving.

The period installation recreates both elaborate and simple Georgian settings. The rooms recall Carpenter's Hall, Independence Hall and American, English and French parlors.

This is the gallery's second of three major bicentennial exhibitions. The first last year, "In the Minds and Hearts of the People," traced the prologue to the Revolution, 1760-1774.

The third, a year hence, will be devoted to the impressions of foreigners who came to the United States and returned home to put these reflections in writing or speech.

PATRICK HENRY SPOKE HERE — Parishoners gather around front entryway to historic St. John's Church in Richmond, Va. It was here on March 23, 1774, that Patrick Henry delivered his impassioned speech ending in the famous "Give me liberty or give me death." Church was built many years before Henry's speech there and still is in use today.

Opening West part of Revolution, too

While Massachusetts minutemen were firing the opening guns of the American Revolution, Daniel Boone and 30 hardy axmen were cutting the Wilderness Road opening the great American interior.

"Every heart abounded with joy and excitement in anticipating the new things we should see and the romantic scenes though which we must pass," exulted Felix Walker. "And, exclusive of the novelty of the journey, the advantages and accumulations ensuing on the settlement of a new country were a dazzling object with many of our company."

Starting March 10, 1775, from what is now the upper eastern corner of Tennessee, Boone's trailblazers cut their way through the Cumberland Gap in defiance of British policy, which attempted to close the western wilderness to the American colonists. Once through the Appalachians, they followed old Indian paths and buffalo trails, sometimes hacking their way through solid brush.

As dawn broke on March 25 Indians attacked, killing two of Boone's men. But pressing on, they reached the Kentucky River in early April and hastily threw up shelter. The site became the tabled Boonesborough.

Their sponsor, Judge Richard Henderson, arrived with supplies and a larger party on April 20, the day Massachusetts minutemen were throwing up the siege of Boston.

Although Boone's party had been there four weeks, Henderson found only a few rude cabins at Boonesborough. The men had spent most of their time staking out land claims to the total neglect of their mission and their safety. Henderson's men promptly did the same.

Pioneers were not altogether the noble figures of legend. Henderson called his "a set of scoundrels who scarcely believe in God or fear a devil if we were to judge from most of their looks, words and actions."

Land was to the English settler of America what gold was to the Spanish or beaver pelts to the French. It was what had brought most of them to the new country and kept them ever shifting in search of more and better land. It was their guiding passion.

But when at last "everybody seemed well satisfied," the Kentuckians did what all American pioneers must. They built tortifications, cleared land, planted a crop and formed a government.

On May 20 elections were held for a provisional government, illegal from the British viewpoint. Boone was one of six representatives chosen from Boonesborough.

"That we have an absolute right, as a political body, without giving umbrage to Great Britain, or any of the colonies, to frame rules for the government of our little society, cannot be doubted by any sensible, unbiased mind," they declared a full year ahead of Thomas Jefferson.

With the settlement secure, Boone went back across the mountains and returned in late August with his family, boasting of "my wife and daughter being the first white women that ever stood on the banks of the Kentucky River."

This was what made the English settlers of America different. It was a family affair. The new land was not a place from which to snatch up gold and run. It was home. They would live there, and they would die there.

Many of them died. The frontier, from the Mohawk Valley to Caintuck, was the cruelest battleground of the Revolution. The Continental Army could give little help. For the most part the West was on its own against British-led Indians.

But these pioneers held the western flank and saved the West for the new nation that was forming.

Meanwhile, they did much more. The frontier probably was the most important single influence in molding America into what it was at the founding and in years to come.

The first thing that faced new Americans, ever since the 16th century, was the wilderness, and from the minute they stepped into it, the European institutions they brought

PIONEER-EXPLORER DANIEL BOONE, 1734-1820

Little known hero Joseph Warren

EDITOR'S NOTE — Joseph Warren, who died on Bunker Hill, was a Founding Father of the United States; a leader of that corps of secret revolutionaries in Boston who led the nation to rebellion.

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer

During the ferment that molded the dissatisfied people of the American colonies into revolutionaries, Joseph Warren was a man to be reckoned with.

His name isn't celebrated in poetry as is Paul Revere's. Yet it was the spy system Warren set up that first became aware of the British plan to march on Concord and Lexington, and it was Warren who sent Revere to warn rebel leaders.

There aren't any statues of Warren. But he gave his life during a hopeless battle when he could have sought safety in the Boston taverns that sheltered other rebel leaders.

He was the American Revolution's first great martyr.

Joseph Warren came from the economic and intellectual class that produced the New England dissenters in the decade before 1776. Born of well-to-do parents in what in 1741 was the pastoral village of Roxbury, Mass., Warren was quickly caught up in the liberal thought of the day.

He enrolled at Harvard College, became a doctor and moved to nearby Boston to practice medicine.

Besides treating patients with leeches, purgatives an blister cups, he became a member of the Committee of Correspondence, a group of colonialists who ran a network of information and propaganda against the British.

His name first became known in September 1774, when he drafted the Suffolk Resolves attacking the British Coercive Laws under which the Port of Boston was closed and local taxes were confiscated.

Charging the British with warring on freedom, Warren wrote that Massachusetts should collect and keep its own taxes and, if necessary, use force to defend the freedom of the colony.

Warren's document, adopted at a Suffolk County convention by representatives from the Boston area, was one of the first open challenges to British sovereignty in the American colonies.

More

Warren turned to a local silversmith to spread the word of the Suffolk Resolves, and Paul Revere headed for Philadelphia and the First Continental Congress. No shots yet, but the American revolution was beginning.

From then on, Warren moved into the first rank of colonial leaders.

He was elected president of a provincial Congress in April 1775 and obtained a commission as major general in the Massachusetts militia. His fateful role in history was approaching its climax.

On April 18, 1775, Gen. Thomas Gage, British governor of Massachusetts, sent troops to arrest Warren, Sa-

WASHINGTON (AP) "The Dye is Now Cast," a major Bicentennial show just opened at the National Portrait Gallery, describes events of the two years before the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

It portrays, through the men and women who were involved, the time of the Battles of Lexington and Concord and of Bunker and Breed's Hills, bloody engagements which helped to make the American Revolution inevitable.

Subtitled "The Road to American Independence, 1774-1776," the exhibition takes its title from a letter from King George III to his prime minister, Lord North, on Sept. 11, 1774:

"The die is now cast, the Colonies must either submit or triumph. I do not wish to come to severer measures, but we must not retreat."

Abigail Adams used the same phrase in a letter to a friend the following Feb. 3: "The die is cast ... Heaven only knows what is next to take place but it seems to me the Sword is now our only, yet dreadful alternative ..."

There are 248 items — paintings, drawings, engravings, documents and associated items — in an 18th century setting at the gallery, a branch of the Smithsonian Institution.

The exhibition was formally opened at an invitational black tie reception Saturday night, the 200th anniversary of the Battles of Lexington and Concord — "the shot heard around the world." It will continue through Nov. 16.

In a foreword to the 320 page exhibition catalogue, Gallery Director Marvin Sadik writes of the colonists' determination to seek independence:

"Clearly, in concluding that the dispute which divided

Consumer watchdogs: a decade of proliferation

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Eleven years ago, when Esther Peterson was named to head the newly created post of presidential assistant on consumer affairs, she had a staff of one and a budget that was borrowed from other agencies.

Virginia Knauer, today's one of the White House consumer post, has a staff of 35 and a budget of $1.6 million.

That growth is mirrored at almost every level of American life. No one knows — or is even willing to guess — how much is being spent now to advise, protect and watch over the U.S. consumer.

Legislation to create an independent federal Consumer Protection Agency is being debated in Washington and the measure is given a good chance of passage, despite defeats of similar measures in the past.

Some congressional committees have consumer affair subcommittes. There are more than 300 state, county and city consumer offices, almost all of which have been created in the past decade.

Followers of auto industry critic Ralph Nader, some- fairs departments, formed within the last six years.

"Name the issue and you can find your consumer expert," said one federal official.

There even is a Society of Professional Consumer Affairs Professionals. The Washington-based organization is comprised of people employed as consumer advisers by business. It had less than times called the father of the consumer movement, have formed public interest research groups to study everything from atomic energy to life insurance.

Grass-roots organizations, ranging from the umbrella-like Consumer Federation of America to the neighborhood club fighting high electric bills, exist in nearly every city of the United States.

Industry has consumer advisers and panels. A 1974 study of 149 major U.S. companies by the Conference Board, a nonprofit research organization, showed that all had full time consumer af-

Are fair trade laws foul play?

Fair trade or foul play?

That's the question more and more people are asking about laws enabling manufacturers to set minimum retail prices for brand-name items ranging from lipsticks to television sets.

A bill is pending in Congress to repeal earlier laws that permitted states to enact fair-trade measures; several states already have removed such legislation from the books this year.

The first fair-trade law was enacted in California in 1931 and every state except Missouri, Texas and Vermont followed suit. The aim of the Depression-era measures was to protect brand-name manufacturers and small stores and businesses from price-cutting competition.

The 1973 Miller-Tydings Act and the 1952 McGuire Act exempted state fair-trade arrangements from prosecution under antitrust legislation.

In recent years, the mood of the country has turned against fair-trade laws. Courts in 25 states have found local fairtrade measures unconstitutional in whole or in part.

Fourteen states have repealed fair-trade laws and similar moves are under way in other states. The New York State and Connecticut legislatures recently sent repeal measures to their governors.

The Federal Trade Commission (FTC), which supports the drive against fair-trade measures, said its most recent count showed such legislation now remains in only 33 states (including New York and Connecticut).

The fair-trade laws in 13 of the 33 states contain so-called nonsigner provisions. That means that if a manufacturer signs a fair-trade contract with one retailer, all other retailers must abide by the minimum price set, even if they have not agreed to the deal.

FTC Chairman Lewis Engman has called fair-trade laws "little more than anti-competitive price fixing" and other government sources have estimated that Americans could save $1.5 billion to $3 billion a year if fair-trade legislation were eliminated.

An FTC spokesman said the move to repeal the laws is due "partly to a new emphasis on antitrust enforcement ... and partly because of the trend toward pro-consumer legislation."

Carol Tucker Foreman, executive director of the Consumer Federation of America, told a Senate subcommittee that a survey showed a Parker 51 pen that costs $9.90 in states without fair-trade laws sells for $16.50 in areas with such legislation.

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., who is sponsoring the repeal drive at the federal level, said abolition of fair-trade laws would be a "small but positive step toward economic recovery" because the move would lower consumer prices and encourage demand.

Some supporters of fair-trade laws concede privately that they do not expect to be able to stop the drive for repeal. Others are continuing the battle.

Gary Parkinson, a lobbyist for the New York State Council of Retail Merchants, argued that repeal of fair-trade laws would hurt smaller stores.

"Most jewelers for example do 20 to 30 per cent of their business in watches," he said, "and most watches are fair traded. If fair trade is removed, the discounters who sell a variety of goods will temporarily engage in price cutting on watches to get the market. And the small jewelers will be eliminated."

A jeweler in Detroit agreed. He said fair-trade arrangements usually apply to "prestige items that enjoy a certain amount of consumer dependability" and added that the laws assure "a normal margin of profit."

Some retailers disagree and are intentionally breaking fair-trade laws, particularly in states where all stores are bound by an agreement signed by only one of them.

Jerry Rosenberg, co-owner of JGE Enterprises of New York City, said recently he had been sued 250 to 300 times by manufacturers attempting to enforce fair-trade agreements. He is still selling appliances below fair-trade prices and is challenging the laws in court.

A recent full-page newspaper ad by LaBelle's, a five-store chain in the Minneapolis, Minn., area, announced a three-day "protest sale" of fair-traded items. The ad listed 13 items with the fair-trade and sale prices. Among the examples: a Panasonic digital clock radio fair traded at $59.95 and on sale at $52.97; a Timex men's watch fair traded for $35 and on sale for $26.25, and a Texas Instruments calculator fair traded at $79.95 and on sale at $57.77.

Corning Glass Works discontinutd fair-trade arrangements last week. Spokesmen said the move was prompted by a recent federal court ruling in which the U.S. 7th Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago upheld an FTC decision that manufacturers could not require wholesalers in non-fair-trade states to abide by such arrangements when selling to retailers in fair-trade areas.

"We find it impractical and inequitable to continue fair trading our products in only limited parts of the market," Corning said.

"Our dedication to fair trade always stemmed from the continuing belief that it's in the best interests of our customers, all our customers — wholesalers, retailers and consumers."

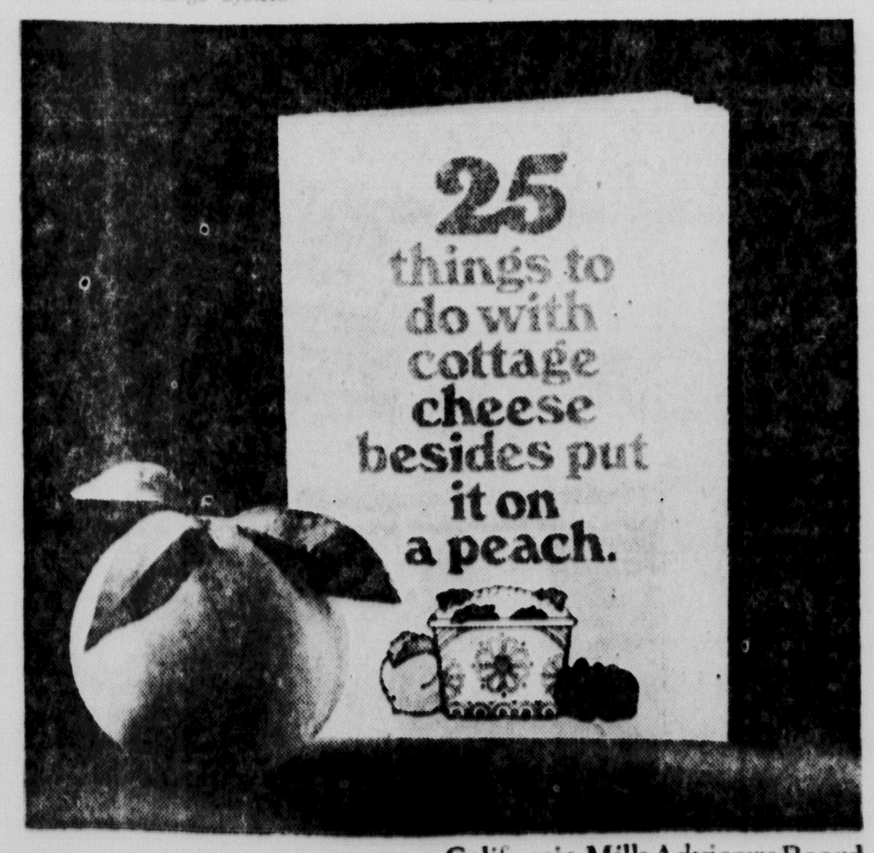
Halve 2 cantaloupes and discard seeds. Partially scoop out pulp with melon ball cutter. Fill shells with 2 c. cottage cheese. Arrange melon balls around cottage cheese. Top with a mixture of 1 c. sour cream and ⅔ c. sliced strawberries. Makes 4 servings.

11. Cottage Noodle Bake.
Cook and drain 8 oz. medium noodles. Add 1 (6½ oz.) can drained tuna, 2 c. cottage cheese, 2 tbsp. each chopped parsley and green onion and 1 (10¾ oz.) can cream of shrimp soup. Top with buttered crumbs. Bake in 2 qt. casserole at 350° for about 30 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

12. Quick Cottage-Corn Chowder.
Mix 1 can (10¾ oz.) cream of chicken soup, 1 can (16½ oz.) cream style corn, 1 c. cottage cheese, 1 can (8 oz.) stewed tomatoes, ¾ c. milk, ¼ tsp. seasoned salt, 1 tbsp. chopped chives, 2 chicken bouillon cubes and dash of garlic powder. Heat gently. Makes about 5 cups chowder.



And that's only half the story. For more budget-stretching, protein-happy ideas look for our booklet "25 Things To Do With Cottage Cheese Besides Put It On A Peach" at the dairy case of participating grocers, now. Get it. You'll love it.

Elderly charge arbitrary age credit cutoff

WASHINGTON (AP) — After paying cash all their lives, elderly Americans now trying to join the "credit society" are denied charge cards because they're too old, a witnesses has told a House panel.

Some of these persons make substantial retirement and investment incomes but are victims of an apparent arbitrary age cut-off on credit privileges, a consultant to two national retired-persons groups testified Wednesday.

John B. Martin said there is "a clear pattern of discrimination against older persons by certain national credit card companies, department stores, gasoline companies, banks and other credit-granting institutions."

"Older persons often encounter credit discrimination when they try to establish credit for the first time after a lifetime of paying cash," Martin told the consumer affairs subcommittee.

Because many stores no longer take personal checks and some individuals are wary of carrying large amounts of cash, credit cards are almost required for these consumers, Martin said.

The subcommittee is considering legislation that would ban credit discrimination on the basis of age, race, color, religion and national origin. Present law forbids discrimination because of sex or marital status.

The age category is the only controversial proposal, with some industry officials saying that while an arbitrary credit cutoff to older persons should not be condoned, age is and should be continued a valid factor in credit decisions.

Martin said the National Retired Teachers Association and the American Association of Retired Persons asked its members last August about their credit problems. He said hundreds of complaining letters have been received.

A 67-year-old physician, for instance, with an annual income of $30,000 and a good credit rating wrote that he couldn't get a mortgage loan because he was too old, according to Martin.

After an initial rejection, "he then applied for a loan at a bank where he had been doing business for 37 years but was turned down unless he could obtain a 'young' cosigner," Martin said.

A retired stock broker who is 64, owns his home outright, worked 46 years for the same firm and has a $15,000 annual retirement income plus other assets but was denied a credit card from a national department store chain, Martin said. The only comment given him by the chain was that his credit rating was not a factor.

Martin argued that age should not be a factor for an older person any more than for a young one.

One large retailer, Montgomery Ward & Co., said it weighs its credit evaluations in favor of older persons because statistically they appear to pay their bills better.

National BankAmericard Inc. said it would support a ban on arbitrary age cut-offs on credit but that it must have leeway to make age and job status inquiries of applicants.

Consumerism

Credit info withheld from U.S. consumers?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers are being deprived of practically all of the Federal Reserve's data about the best terms on bank loans and savings accounts, the Consumers Union says.

Peter H. Schuck, director of the private organization's Washington office, endorsed legislation by Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., for a thorough audit of the Fed by the congressional watchdog agency, the General Accounting Office.

Instead of keeping secret the information gathered from banks, the Fed ought to be prodded to collect information needed by consumers and to disseminate it widely, Schuck told a House banking subcommittee.

After public pressure and congressional hearings, the Fed recently agreed to furnish results of its bank surveys on one narrow category of loans, consumer installment credit loans. The Fed still keeps to itself results of its surveys on at least 50 other issues, Schuck said.

"Judging from our experience, the Fed needs a good deal of outside assistance both in asking the right questions (of banks) and in answering them," Schuck said. "The GAO audit and a vigilant Congress can provide that help."

The Federal Reserve is, in effect, the nation's central bank. It handles trillions of dollars of transactions annually and buys and sells billions of dollars of government securities.

Last year, Patman pushed through a bill providing for a modified audit of the Fed, but it died in the Senate. Prospects for a much broader audit — as the GAO says is needed — are brighter this year in both houses.

Speaking of the Fed surveys, Schuck said, "At least some of that information is undeniably valuable to consumers shopping for the best terms on loans, savings accounts and other banking services."

Consumers Union sued under the Freedom of Information Act to get the results of the Fed's survey of bank consumer installment loan categories starting in mid-1973.

Local banks furnish this information to individual customers and in some cases advertise it in newspapers. But the Fed said it was confidential.

Finally, the union's magazine, Consumer Reports, published the list after acquiring it from a Fed employe.

Congressional hearings were held after it was revealed the Fed had called in the FBI to trace the leak. The employe later was forced to quit, Schuck said.

Drain about a gallon of water from your hot water heater every month or so, there's a valve just for this purpose. This helps keep the unit operating efficiently, removes sediment and prevents build-up of lime deposits.

When writing your grocery shopping list, try to do it in the order that the item appears in the store. This efficient listing will not only save you time since you avoid backtracking, but may save you money as well. The less time you spend in the store, the less you are likely to give in to impulse buying.

Enjoy squash in summer, fall and winter

By ALLEN A. SWENSON
(Seventh in a series)

You can enjoy squash in summer, fall and winter. Actually, when you select the right varieties, you can enjoy squash year-round. You have a wide choice — green, white, yellow, orange and multicolored too.

Squash bugs aside, this vegetable is easily grown. New types have been designed to use less space and produce more abundantly.

The hill system is usually the best culture method for all squash. A hill can be merely a marked-off circle on your garden plot from which the squash vines radiate in their growth habit.

Summer squash should be planted directly in the ground after all danger of frost is over. Place five or six seeds 2 to 3 inches apart in a hill. Space hills of bush varieties 4 feet apart each way. These are best for small gardens.

Place groups or hills of running-vine types 6 to 8 feet apart. If they can wander at will over noncultivated areas, try them. Otherwise, stick with the space-saver types.

Thin to 3 or 4 plants per hill or group for bush types, 2 or 3 for runaway varieties. For winter squash, use the same planting and thinning as for bush types.

Squash contains lots of water, so give them lots to drink. Mulch well around the hills, use grass clippings, compost, peat moss, rotted manure mixed with old leaves. The better you mulch, the less water will be lost, and weeds won't sprout through to rob water and nutrients.

We leave some areas with a permanent mulch. Every week all our available mulch material is distributed evenly. Then each spring we simply use a hoe or four-tined rake to pull away the mulch and scratch open the soil, planting hills in the space cleared. This saves hours of work. Better yet, the mulch keeps adding valuable organic matter to the soil year after year.

Caution: squash tends to bear heavily. Only a few hills will feed you well. It is best to have two hills, each of several varieties. It varies your diet and saves space.

In neighborhoods or community gardens, share seeds around, or arrange to share harvest. That way you can have your squash and eat some of your neighbor's too.

Recommended: For summer squash, by all means try Early Golden Summer Crookneck. This curved-neck squash has meaty fruits, bright yellow skin, and delicious flavor. Pick when young and tender. True, you don't get as much poundage per fruit, but the taste is far superior, especially from young squash.

True Hubbard, a popular winter squash, serves many purposes. It can be used immediately, stored in cool basements, baked, boiled, and made into pies. It has dark bronze skin with deep orange-to-yellow flesh that is fine-grained, sweet and dry. Fruits grow 12 inches long, weight about 12 pounds each, and mature in 129 days. Warted skin is typical.

One of the most popular, most productive squash, Zucchini, has many uses, from soups to salads to fried, baked, or steamed meal-per-ker-uppers. New varieties take little room, and they are so heavy bearing that only two hills will feed your entire family abundantly all season.

Recommended: Fordhook Zucchini, which matures in 57 days, is an All America winner. The best table size is 8 to 12 inches. Its flesh is creamy white and tender. The bush-like, vigorous plants save space.

Bet you thought I'd been on vacation. Not so. Our consumer affairs department has been as busy as ever working with customers on a day to day basis, and we have created several new programs for you. A selection of information brochures is now ready. Included in the latest series are pamphlets on how to use nutrition labeling and unit pricing. We've also prepared leaflets on citrus and vitamin C, ground beef, and chicken. These include all sorts of helpful hints on how to buy, store, and use these special products. Nutritional guidelines and even a variety of excellent recipes have been included. In our stores with consumer service centers, these are being distributed, but they're available free from this office upon request. We'd like to send them to you.

May is a month of holidays! May 1, May Day, is celebrated in the Western World with maypoles and May baskets. The 5th of May, Cinco de Mayo, is welcomed with song and dance by many here in the Southwest. Mother's Day is the second Sunday in May, and the month is climaxed by Memorial Day, this year on May 26.

May is also blood pressure-month. Did you know that one out of every seven persons in the U.S. is suffering from high blood pressure? Without treatment, high blood pressure may lead to strokes and heart attacks. Your local chapter of the American Heart Association has information where you can secure free or low-cost blood pressure testing. They also have an excellent free brochure, entitled, "Save Food $ and Help Your Heart." The Heart Association is listed in your phone book, call them. It may save your life.

Consumer watchdogs

100 members when it was founded May 24, 1973. As of March 1, 1975, there were 431 members.

"At present there are none," said Bradley. "There's not even a book on the subject."

Where did it all start? What good does it do? Where is it all going?

Defining a consumer used to be relatively simple. He was somebody who used something. But the consumer in today's world has become something more. He has rights. He has interests. He has specific concerns about specific products.

The first president to meet with consumer representatives was Theodore Roosevelt. The session grew out of an investigation into stockyard conditions described in Upton Sinclair's book "The Jungle." The investigation and meeting resulted in the Pure Food and Drug Act of 1906.

Modern-day consumerism probably started with John F. Kennedy who promised during his 1960 presidential campaign to name an adviser on consumer affairs. Kennedy never named such an adviser, but he did set up a Consumer Advisory Council and, in 1963, issued a statement of consumer rights.

Kennedy said the consumer had four basic rights:

—The right to be heard.

Consumerism

—The right to a choice.

—The right to be protected against unsafe products.

—The right to a response to legitimate complaints.

In January, less than two months after taking office, President Johnson created a consumer affairs post and tapped Mrs. Peterson, an assistant secretary of labor, for the job.

"I started with one office, a telephone and a secretary," recalled Mrs. Peterson, now a consumer adviser for the Giant Food supermarket chain. She borrowed staff from other agencies and put together a budget the same way. Later, Congress issued a regular appropriation.

Betty Furness, now a consumer affairs reporter for NBC, replaced Mrs. Peterson in March 1967 and Mrs. Knauer took over in April 1969.

President Nixon issued an executive order in February 1971, changing the name of the job — from executive director of the Presidential Committee on Consumer Interest to director of the White House Office of Consumer Affairs. Critics charge that the name change was cosmetic and did not increase the power behind the job.

One of the best-known consumer advisers never held a federal post. She is Bess Myerson, the former Miss America who became New York City's Comissioner of Consumer Affairs in 1969. She was mentioned briefly as a possible mayoral candidate and now writes a newspaper column and acts as consumer adviser to First National City Bank.

Government and private efforts in the field of consumer affairs have been the subject of almost constant controversy for years.

The Conference Board, in its study, said that consumer affairs units in private companies represent "a positive approach to the growing force of the consumerism movement." But the study added: "It would be an overstatement to assert that simply because a firm has a consumer affairs unit, it has necessarily launched an effective consumer relations effort."

FTC orders 'rain checks' issued A & P customers

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission announced recently it has issued a final order requiring A&P supermarkets to maintain adequate stocks of advertised specials and to provide customers with "rain checks" when supplies run out.

The order was based on the finding of a commission administrative law judge that unavailability and overpricing of advertised specials by the chain were substantial and widespread practices.

An FTC survey of 80 A&P stores in 20 cities found that about 9.3 per cent of the advertised items were unavailable and 3.7 per cent were overpriced.

In half of the stores, 10 or more items were unavailable. More than five items were overpriced in nearly the same number, according to the survey.

Administrative Law Judge Daniel H. Hanscom, whose decision was not appealed to the full commission by A&P, found that A&P's shortages amounted to an unfair and deceptive practice, even though the actions were not intentional or willfull.

The FTC order requires A&P to post copies of any sale advertisements near the doorways of supermarkets and post a notice listing any sold-out items. The notice would also have to advise shoppers of their right to demand a voucher, or "rain check," enabling them to buy the items later at the lower price.

The company said it "will react positively" to the order.

An A&P statement said: "We did not appeal the initial decision and order of the administrative law judge because we found upon study and deliberation that its requirements were acceptable to the company.

Slaying sparks GM probe

NEW YORK (AP) — General Motors Corp. has launched an investigation into alleged warranty irregularities and fired dozens of employes in the wake of the murder of a Chevrolet service manager, it was revealed last week.

GM officials in Detroit declined comment on the report.

"We consider the subject to be an internal affair and have no comment," a spokesman said.

The report in the Journal said both GM and a Boston grand jury have been involved in the investigation. It said the probe began in January 1974 after a Chevrolet service manager in the Boston area was found shot to death.

The Journal said GM President E.M. "Pete" Estes confirmed an inquiry is under way into possible irregularities in payment of warranty work by at least one dealer and inequitable distribution of the choicest Chevrolet cars, the models which are the hottest sellers.

A number of Chevrolet employes in various offices, such as Tarrytown, N.Y., Detroit and Boston, were discharged without any explanation, causing bitter reactions by some of them.

A police affidavit on file in Middlesex, Mass., County summarized the alleged illegal activities this way:

When customers brought their cars into the Gordon Butler Chevrolet Agency in Lowell, Mass., for repairs under car warranties, dealership employes would do the prescribed work but then would charge GM for such items as "replacement of pistons, replace crankshafts or replace transmissions."

Police said the expensive, unnecessary work was never done, but GM paid for the labor and supplied the appropriate replacement parts, which later were sold to other customers.

A grand jury last February indicted the Butler dealership and several individuals in the case.

The police affidavits filed in Middlesex County said that after the body of Francis Smith, a service manager, was found floating in a river north of Boston, with a bullet in his head, teams of GM investigators began sifting through warranty claims at Butler and disallowed thousands of dollars worth.

Informed sources said the investigation was continuing at GM and that thousands of dollars in alleged false claims had been uncovered thus far.

With strawberries

Cool off summer with your handmade cones

A really different thing to do with strawberries now in season is to serve fresh, juicy, crimson beauties with whipped cream in homemade cones.

If the idea of homemade cones seems like too much work, just buy the ready-made kind and enjoy this novel dessert anyway.

We credit the Indians with giving the early settlers corn, and so they did. But the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association tells us of another gift from the Indians. When the English settled in Massachusetts, they found the Indians growing and eating strawberries, and they took on the Indian way of feasting on the juicy berries.

Another way to enjoy the season's fresh strawberries is in a Strawberry Spoon Dessert Drink made with fresh pineapple as well as berries. It's really a soda fountain type creation — a drink that you eat with a spoon — complete with ginger ale and sherbet in addition to the delicious fruits.

If you are watching calories, strawberries will fit into your plans. The cheerful red fruit is low in calories but high in vitamin C and in minerals, too. Enjoy this delightful treat while the fruit is in good supply at your market right now.

OLD-FASHIONED STRAWBERRY CONES

½ cup butter or margarine, softened
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup honey
1 teaspoon grated fresh lemon rind
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour

In large bowl cream butter and sugar. Beat in honey and lemon rind. Stir in flour. Let dough rest 5 minutes. For each cookie, place 3 tablespoons dough on baking sheet and flatten with a spoon into 5 round. Four cookies will fit on one large baking sheet. Bake in 375 degree oven 10 minutes, or until lightly browned. Remove from oven, let stand on baking sheet 3 minutes, or just until cool enough to handle. Roll into cone shapes. If cookie is too cool to roll, return to oven for a minute. Place on rack and cool completely.

TO ASSEMBLE:

1½ teaspoons sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup fresh strawberries, washed, hulled and halved

In small bowl whip heavy cream until soft peaks form, then beat in sugar and vanilla. Spread a little whipped cream over inside of each cone. Spoon strawberries into cones, top with a dollop of whipped cream and garnish with a strawberry half.

Makes: 8 servings.

NOTE: Packaged cones for ice cream may be used instead of homemade cookie cones.

STRAWBERRY SPOON DESSERT DRINK

1 cubed fresh pineapple
1 cup fresh strawberries
2 teaspoons sugar
4 cups chilled ginger ale
1 pint lemon sherbet

To prepare pineapple, cut off stem and crown ends. Cut off rind all around, from top to bottom; remove eyes with pointed knife. Cut into lengthwise quarters, cut away core and cut into chunks. Wash and hull strawberries, cut in half. Place strawberries and 1 cup pineapple in large bowl, sprinkle with sugar. Let stand until ready to use. Divide fruit among 4 large glasses. Add ½ cup sherbet to each glass. Pour 1 cup ginger ale into each glass. Serve immediately.

Makes: 4 servings.

Of pepper . . .

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Ever since my doctor told me to go easy on the salt, I have leaned heavily on pepper in seasoning food and find it the most versatile of spices.

As the late Louis Diat, the famed chef, once noted, no other condiment does so much for so many types of food. Pepper, he said, will often be used three times on the same dish: first as an ingredient in the preparation, then to correct the over-all seasoning and finally at the table if the diner really wants to spice up his meal.

Pepper has a long and varied history. The ancient Greeks thought so highly of it that they used it in various medical potions. An antidote for poison hemlock consisted of pepper and a victim of suffocation was given a mixture of pepper and vinegar.

In Rome, pepper was a rare luxury, since the voyage to the Far East where the peppercorns were grown was long and hazardous. At one point, the spice rocketed in price to $125 a Roman pound, which was actually only 12 ounces.

Originally grown mainly in the East Indies, pepper is now cultivated in the tropical zones of both the eastern and western hemispheres. The latest commercial producer is Brazil, where they began cultivating the spice in the jungles half a century ago, but did not export it in a big way until after World War II.

To make black pepper, the entire peppercorn is dried and ground. However, in some foods like cream soups, lightcolor sauces and salad dressings where the dark grains don't look too appetizing, white pepper is used. This is made by removing the dark skin of the peppercorn and using only the core.

Generally speaking, white pepper is milder flavored and lacks the bouquet of black pepper. It is usually finer in grind than the dark type.

Pepper should be kept in a dry place at room temperature. The whole peppercorns will keep indefinitely, but even the ground variety has a long life.

Here is a recipe for a favorite of mine in which pepper plays a key role.

STEAK AU POIVRE

2 teaspoons coarse-ground black pepper
A four-pound boneless sirloin steak, about two inches thick
1 teaspoon salt
If desired
½ cup dry red wine

Rub black pepper into both sides of steak. Let it stand at room temperature 30 minutes. Lightly grease large, heavy skillet and heat well. Sprinkle both sides of steak with salt and place in skillet. Cook on each side till done as desired, or about 8 to 10 minutes. Remove meat to a serving platter. Add wine to skillet and stir for one minute. Pour over steak. Slice and serve. Good with a robust red Burgundy. Serves 6 to 8 people.

. . . cottage cheese . . .

The origin of cottage cheese might well be termed "serendipity".

An Arab caravan stopped at an oasis after an especially scorching day, according to legend. Much to their surprise, instead of milk in the animal skin bags they carried, the weary travelers found what we now call cottage cheese. Somewhere along the bouncing, bumpy way, liquids seeped out, evaporating in the desert heat, leaving milk curds.

While cottage cheese is no longer made in animal skin bags on the backs of camels, the manufacturing process combines many of the same ingredients as the original "recipe". Today, fresh milk is placed in spotless, stainless steel vats, and with heat, agitation and a substance called rennet, solid curd separates from liquid whey. The curd can be cut into large or small pieces before cooking. Afterwards, fresh dairy cream may be added. Thus, consumers have a choice of large or small curd, and creamed or dry cottage cheese.

Traditional uses of cottage cheese have gone unchanged until recent times when homemakers have found it adaptable to a wide variety of budget-stretching main courses, salads and gourmet desserts.

Cottage cheese is high in protein and relatively low in calories. In addition, it is an excellent source of calcium, phosphorous, iron, sodium, potassium, vitamin A, thiamine, riboflavin, niacin and other essential nutrients.

To provide homemakers with new recipe ideas that the California Milk Advisory Board has developed a 12-page booklet titled "25 Things to Do With Cottage Cheese," available free at dairy cases in most food stores and dairy drive-ins. The educational booklet also contains nutritional information about cottage cheese.

Consumers unable to find the booklets in grocery stores can obtain one free by writing to the California Milk Advisory Board, P.O. Box 4680, Modesto, Ca. 95352. Please enclose a self-addressed stamped No. 10 envelope.

. . . and beer

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Ever since the ancient Babylonians stumbled on a formula to make a foamy brew from malted cereal 5,000 years ago, beer has been a favorite drink of all classes in many lands.

In England they were drinking beer in thatched cottages and baronial halls before tea was ever heard of. And the brew has always been the top favorite in Scandinavian countries where the windswept soil of these northern lands refuses to produce wine-giving grapes.

There are many types of beer, of course, like the ales of Canada, the famed stout of Dublin and the dark porter which is popular in English country pubs.

In the United States, more than 90 per cent of the beer brewed is lager, made from barley and such cereal adjuncts as corn or rye.

Americans have long been aware of the valuable role beer can play in the kitchen, where they use it in making Welsh rarebit and other cheese dishes and that wonderful southern specialty of shrimp cooked in boiling beer. beer.

Some of the best beer I ever drank or sampled in cookery was in Belgium, that picturesque little nation ringed by France, Germany, the Netherlands and Luxembourg. The national drink of Belgium is beer which comes in many varieties. A number of years ago, I spent many a summer afternoon in a Brussels brasserie sipping beer and reading the newspaper without being rushed by an impatient waiter.

Food is opulent and robust in Belgium, from the smoked hams of the Ardennes to the rich fish soups made from carp, perch and eel served in the North Sea coastal towns.

Beer cookery is popular in Belgium, where they are famed for the rib-sticking pork and beer steaks of Ghent, the classic Carbonnade Flamande consisting mainly of beef, onions and light beer, and the unique beer waffles of Brussels. A considerable amount of beer goes into this mixture but it acts as leavening and no trace is left in the crisp waffles. Here is my recipe for carbonnade.

1 pound onions sliced thin
2 ounces butter
2½ pounds round steak cubed
1 garlic clove minced
½ teaspoon each ground nutmeg and thyme
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon worcestershire
1 can (10½ ounces) beef bouillon
2 cans (12 ounces) beer
2 tablespoons flour

In flameproof casserole, saute onions in half the butter till soft and golden. Remove onions and reserve. Melt remaining butter in casserole and brown beef on all sides. Return onions to pot. Add garlic, nutmeg, thyme, salt, pepper, worcestershire bouillon and beer. Bring to boil, then reduce heat and simmer covered about 30 minutes. Thicken gravy with flour mixed with water, serve with boiled potatoes and well-chilled beer. Serves 6.

Strawberry, rhubarb, pineapple pie a winner

Winter has slipped away leaving the promise of a feisty spring with all of its new fruits and flowers. This is the time to pluck the seasonal fresh rhubarb, cook it up for sauce or as a delicious ingredient in a Spring Fruit Pie. Rhubarb and fresh strawberries plus crushed pineapple make a perfect spring dessert. Serve with homemade ice cream, fresh whipped cream or just plain. This pie is good hot or cold.

SPRING FRUIT PIE

2 cups sliced strawberries (about 1 pint)
2 cups 1-inch pieces rhubarb (about ¾ pound)
½ cup drained, crushed pineapple
2 tablesppons lemon juice
1 cup sugar
¼ cup corn starch
Dash salt
1 recipe double crust pastry
2 tablespoons margarine

Stir together strawberries, rhubarb, pineapple and lemon juice. Add sugar, corn starch and salt; toss well. Line a 9-inch pie plate with ½ the pastry rolled ⅛-inch thick. Turn fruit mixture into pastry lined plate. Dot with margarine. Roll out remaining pastry for top crust. Cut slits to permit steam to escape during baking and place over filling. Seal and flute edges. Bake in 425-degree oven 40 to 45 minutes or until lightly browned. Makes one (9-inch) pie.

Link alcoholism to male sterility

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — A panel of doctors studying alcoholism says it has found a definite relationship between alcoholism and male sterility.

Dr. Joshua Perper, chief forensic pathologist for the Allegheny County coroner's office, says severe testicle damage was found in men with a history of alcoholism and it could result from two causes.

He said damage to the liver could prevent the liver from neutralizing female hormones produced in the male, or the alcohol itself may be toxic to the testicles.

Whether there is also a direct causal link between liquor and consistent impotence remains undetermined, Perper said in an interview Wednesday.

"It is very hard to say whether the changes in the testes may be associated with impotence," said Perper. "Impotence may be psychologically related and requires the study of living individuals."

Perper said he and two other physicians discovered the highly damaged testes during a study of unexplained deaths among alcoholics.

"These were heavy drinkers who did not have severe liver disease," said a participating researcher, Dr. Lewis Kuller, an epidemiologist at the University of Pittsburgh.

"When they died, it was not of classical cirrhosis and it was not at home or under medical supervision. We are trying to find out why they die when the only observable damage is a fatty liver."

Perper said a fatty liver condition is considered reversable and not very serious.

During autopsies to determine the cause of death in these men, the researchers said they routinely examined the heart, pancreas, liver and testes. It was then that the atrophy in testes was found.

"People observed long ago that those with cirrhosis, and scarring of the liver, suffered damage to the testicles. The explanation was that the damaged liver could not break down the female hormones," Perper said.

"But we discovered a high incidence of testicle damage in those without a fatty liver. This suggests that alcohol itself may be damaging the testes."

Q: "My neighbor says table scraps aren't good for dogs. Is that right?"

A: Yes. When compared to scientifically formulated pet foods like Blue Mountain Home Style Stew, table scraps are sadly lacking in the needed protein, vitamins, minerals, amino acids and carbohydrates. Besides, overly rich table scraps can make your dog a finicky eater and eventually lead to obesity, hardening of the arteries and even heart attacks.

She baby sits calves

By DENNIS KOIS
Associated Press Writer

EAST TROY, Wis. (AP) — Encouraged by a veterinarian who considers it is an art to raise calves, Marguerite Anderson has become nanny to 30 young Holsteins a neighboring dairy farmer was too busy to take care of.

"Why? Because I like calves," Mrs. Anderson said Wednesday. "We did get rid of our dairy cows, and I didn't like to let the barn stand empty."

Now the barn is a calf nursery, complete with bottles for feeding, special foods and a makeshift sick room — a plastic-covered plywood crate equipped with vaporizer and heat lamp.

Mrs. Anderson, who was looking for something to do after she and her husband sold 45 head of cattle and much of their farmland, was introduced to dairy farmer Robert Hood by Dr. John Crawley, a veterinarian from nearby Palmyra.

"I believe raising calves is an art," Crawley said. "Some farmers don't have the time or patience to raise these calves, but she has a knack for it."

He says he believes a lot of farmers would be better off "letting somebody else take care of their calves while they do what they do best. Some people can just take care of these baby calves better than others."

Now Mrs. Anderson drives the 10 miles to Hood's farm each time a calf is born and brings it home. She also brings back a supply of colostrum from the calf's mother, the extra-rich milk with vitamins and minerals produced the first days after birth.

Chicken amandine

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

Chicken remains an international favorite and lends itself to a variety of dishes. In France, a chef may insert truffles under the bird's skin and roast it. In Spain, it often turns up in a paella. Italians enjoy chicken with garlic and tomatoes, and the Chinese sliver chicken and serve it with crisp vegetables. Americans love their fried, roasted and creamed chicken. A complete dish features a Chicken Amandine with Rice Ring. This makes a good Sunday dinner meal when served with a fresh vegetable salad.

CHICKEN AMANDINE WITH RICE RING

3 cups chicken stock (reserved from Simmered Chicken*)
3 cups light cream
½ cup butter or margarine
1½ pounds mushrooms, sliced
2-3 cup flour
1½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce
6 cups cubed cooked chicken (from Simmered Chicken*)
½ cup toasted slivered almonds

Combine chicken stock and cream; reserve. Melt butter over low heat. Add mushrooms and cook, stirring occasionally, 10 minutes. Add flour; stir to a paste. Stir in chicken stock mixture. Cook, stirring constantly, until the mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Stir in salt, pepper sauce, chicken. Heat to serving temperature. Turn into Rice Ring; sprinkle almonds on top. Makes 12 servings.

*SIMMERED CHICKEN

3 broiler-fryer chickens (2½ pounds each), whole or cut in serving pieces
4 cups water
3 small onions
6 celery tops
3 bay leaves
2 teaspoons monosodium glutamate
2 teaspoons salt

Put chicken in large kettle with tight-fitting lid. Add water and remaining ingredients. Cover. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer 1 hour or until tender. Remove from heat; strain stock and reserve. Remove meat from bones in as large pieces as possible.

RICE RING

Press 12 cups hot cooked rice into 12-cup ring mold. Turn out on large platter

A Mexican mole makes Cinco de Mayo fiesta

Cinco de Mayo. The Fifth of May is a national holiday in Mexico, commemorating the 1862 victory of an outnumbered Mexican Army over invading French forces. In many U.S. communities it is observed as Mexican-American Day, honoring those of Mexican heritage and all things Mexican: manners, modes and menus. Typical fare on a Mexican menu would be any of the many moles (pronounced mo-LAY). It's a tasty Mexican sauce with the distinctive flavor of chili. Home economists of the Rosarita Mexican Foods Co. have developed this recipe for Basic Easy Pork Mole Sauce in which canned enchilada sauce or red chili sauce provide the chili flavor.

The mole sauce can be used for basting a succulent pork roast as well as in creating Mole De Guerrero Con Puerco which combines cooked pork and potatoes.

BASIC EASY MOLE SAUCE

1 (10-oz.) can Rosarita Enchilada Sauce or Mexican Red Chili Sauce
1 (8-oz.) can tomato sauce
¼ cup chopped onion
1 tablespoon sesame seeds
2 tablespoos chopped green pepper

Combine sauces, onion, green pepper and sesame seed in blender container. Blend until smooth.

MOLE DE GUERRERO CON PUERCO
(6 servings)

Basic Easy Mole Sauce
3 cups diced cooked pork
3 tablespoons lard or cooking oil
2 cups sliced cooked potatoes
1 (2½-oz.) jar sliced mushrooms, drained

Brown pork in hot fat, 3 minutes. Add sauce, simmer 5 minutes. Add potatoes and mushrooms; heat until hot.

LOMO DE PUERCO (6 to 8 servings)

Sear a seasoned boneless pork loin roast (about 3½ pounds) on all sides. Place in roasting pan and pour Basic Easy Mole Sauce over roast. In 325 degree oven, roast until meat thermometer registers 170 degrees, basting several times (about 2 to 2½ hours). Let set 15 to 20 minutes before carving.

Coachella grapefruit delights

Help ward off the springtime sniffles and sneezes with a diet that's rich in natural vitamin C.

California grapefruit is a great way to get this precious vitamin, naturally — it measures highest in vitamin C content.

So many ways to use fresh sunny-gold and pink grapefruit from Coachella Valley. Squeeze it for tangy, zippy juice — doctors always recommend lots of liquids. One juicy grapefruit makes a brimming glassful.

A wonderful old-fashioned home remedy comes from grandma's days: Pour boiling water over cut-up fruit (or the rind and pulp of the breakfast grapefruit half), let it steep for a refreshing beverage for the cold sufferer.

A perker-upper, too, is a grapefruit salad done the Mexican way; grapefruit blended with vegetables marinated in spicy sauce, hot wth chili. The sweety-tart California grapefruit has always been a favored salad maker with seafood. Here we team it with vegetables which cost less but are very nutritious: Limas, for protein, vitamin A and potassium; brocolli for vitamin A, vitamin C and potassium.

These hearty salads make a great energy lunch and the kind of low calorie dish all dieters dream about — filling, satisfying and yet low in calories. A Coachella grapefruit half contains only 50 calories; the vegetables hardly enough to bother worrying about.

Grapefruit with broccoli

Grapefruit — Lima Bean Cup

1 package (10 ounce) frozen baby lima beans
¼ cup fresh lemon juice
½ cup olive oil
1 tablespoon chopped watercress
1 tablespoon chopped pimiento
2 Coachella grapefruit
Chili powder

Cook vegetables as directed until just tender. Drain and let cool. Combine lemon juice, olive oil, watercress and pimiento. Marinate lima beans for at least 2 hours. Cut grapefruit in half and carefully remove segments and pulp. Lightly toss lima beans with grapefruit segments and fill grapefruit cups. Sprinkle with chili powder. Makes 4 servings.

Grapefruit — Broccoli Cup

1 package (10 ounces) frozen broccoli flowerlets
¼ cup fresh lemon juice
½ cup olive oil
2 Coachella grapefruit
Chili powder

Cook broccoli as directed on package until just tender. Drain. Cool and marinate in lemon juice and olive oil for at least 2 hours. Cut grapefruit in half and carefully remove segments and pulp. Lightly toss broccoli with grapefruit segments and arrange in grapefruit cups. Sprinkle with chili powder. Makes 4 servings.

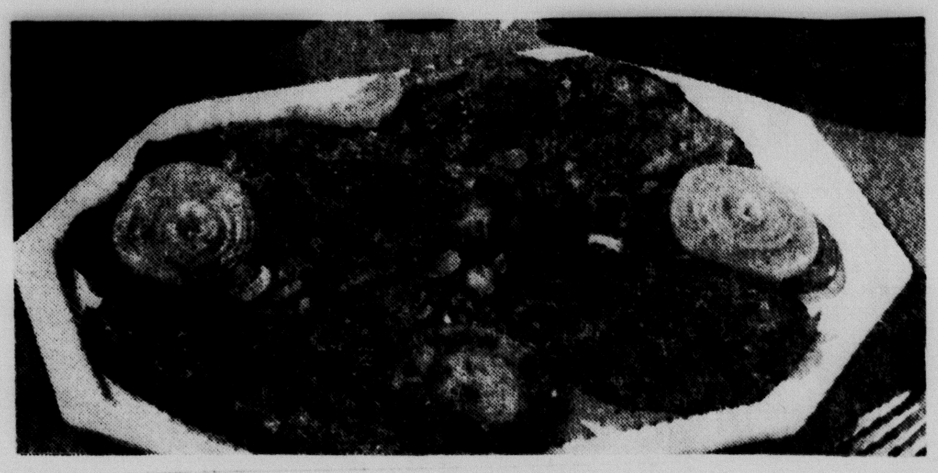
MEAT



Vegetarianism

Are meat eaters cannibals?

When a young scholar claims that eating meat, fish and fowl "will some day be universally viewed with the same horror that is now attached to cannibalism," then — if only because of shock — you should listen further to what she has to say.

In this instance it is Janet Barkas who attempts to trace the history of vegetarianism from the days of Jainism and Buddhism down to present times.

Vegetarianism as a religious, ethical and humanitarian creed is what Miss Barkas writes about in her new book called "The Vegetable Passion: A History of the Vegetarian State of Mind." (Scribner's, $8.95).

The book is packed with items of interest, wonder and some almost magical beliefs. But at this point let's stick to the humanitarian angle of vegetarianism.

Con . . .

Geometry students are familiar with the Pythagorean theorem that the sum of the squares, etc. But that Pythagoras is generally known as the "father of vegetarianism" may be news to most people. Born in the sixth century before Christ, Pythagoras is quoted as saying:

". . . do not defile your bodies with sinful foods. We have corn. We have apples — and grapes — sweet-flavored herbs and vegetables that can be cooked over the fire. You are not denied milk or thyme-scented honey. The earth affords a lavish supply of riches of innocent foods, and offers you banquets that involve no bloodshed or slaughter. Only beasts satisfy their hunger with flesh."

His meals have been described as bread and honey for dinner and raw and cooked vegetables for supper. He is said to have paid fishermen to return their catch to the sea, stroked wild bears and abhored animal sacrifice and wine.

Leonardo da Vinci, Tolstoy, Gandhi are brought into the vegetarian picture, largely as detesters of animal slaying. Two particularly strident characters, Wagner and Hitler, were strict vegetarians. Wagner on ethical grounds, Hitler on physiological grounds, Miss Barkas writes.

"Numerous accounts by Hitler's contemporaries affirm that his diet consisted of dairy products, eggs, vegetables, fruits, grains and sweets, but never meat, fish or fowl. Hitler stressed that he was a vegetarian mainly because it increased his working and intellectual abilities," she adds. "But he was not always consistent."

The author, a graduate of Hofstra University, teacher at the New School for Social Research and an editor, has researched her subject diligently.

She rejects the idea that vegetarianism is a cult. Some of her documents on this score are questionable but always entertaining. She tells that we once had a candidate for president who ran on the Vegetarian ticket, that a Seventh Day Adventist and firm advocate of cereals in the diet, Dr. John Henry Kellogg, established the Battle Creek Sanitoriam, and gave his name to the Kellog Co. of Battle Creek, makers of breakfast foods. While vegetarians of Canada once held a nudist parade to protest against the rising materialism, a recent headline in the Majority Report, organ of the women's liberation movement, stated: "The All Compassionate Feminist Is a Vegetarian."

"The Vegetable Passion" is a valid study of the subject, wide-ranged, ostensibly sincere and fairly objective.

What to look for when buying veal

Veal connoisseurs will welcome the news that more of this fine meat is available now in many areas of the country.

Other cooks, who are unfamiliar with this meat because of its limited supply over the past three decades, may be inspired to prepare a variety of veal cuts for new and pleasant eating experiences.

Veal is from very young calves, generally about six weeks of age. Meat experts at the National Live Stock and Meat Board explain that retail veal cuts, although similar in shape to corresponding beef cuts, are very different in size and color. Veal cuts are considerably smaller than comparable cuts from mature beef. In color, veal will vary from a very pale pink to a greyish pink. These color characteristics are found in meat from calves up to about three months of age.

Pro . . .

Veal has a soft, smooth texture and its fat is soft and pliable. Marbling, flecks of fat found in the lean of beef, does not occur in veal because of its immaturity. This is a factor to be considered in cooking.

Veal has a tender and delicate flavor which also requires special attention in cooking. It is best cooked at a low temperare, and most frequently by moist heat methods such as braising or cooking in liquid. Cuts such as round steak, cutlets and cubes for stew require less cooking time than comparable cuts of beef.

Veal always should be cooked well done, but never overcooked or it will dry out and the mild flavor will be lost. Its delicate flavor is often enhanced by breading the meat prior to cooking or by cooking in and serving with sauces such as tomato or sour cream.

Since veal lacks the fat of beef, broiling is not recommended. Veal cuts such as leg, loin, rack and boneless shoulder can be roasted.
